PRIVILEGED FISH BIDS CHARGED

Witness Testifies That Wholesale Prices Are Advanced by This Means

Boosting of the price of fish on the wholesale market, sometimes to the extent of ten cents in the pound, as a result of the Bay State Fishing Company of Maine enjoying a bidding privilege on the New England Fish Exchange, although not registered there, was brought out in testimony today of Nicholas L. Fulham, a government witness at the fish trial in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court.

Fulham, a member of the Fulham, Herbert Company, a subsidiary of the Boston Fish Pier Company, was testifying in re-direct examination by Assistant District Attorney Webber.

Mr. Webber brought out the point that, for a period of fifteen months, beginning some time in 1917, the Bay State Fishing Company of Maine withdrew its fish suply from the New England Fish Exchange.

In the meantime, while the company's trawlers were bringing in fish, its representatives were cleaning up the independent market.

CRISIS ON CLAIMS OF FRANCE

"Big Four" Divided Over Allowing Extreme Demands of Clemenceau

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
Correspondent of the International News Service.

Paris, March 28.—The real crisis of the Big Four negotiations was reached today with the consideration of France's territorial and financial demands from Germany. Premier Clemenceau is pressing four points:

1—Restitution of Alsace-Lorraine.

2—The ceding to France of the entire Saar basin, whose mineral wealth and natural resources, it is claimed, would offset the destruction of mineral resources in Northern France.

3—Complete military neutralization of the left bank of the Rhine so that "not a single German soldier will be seen there again."

4—A money payment in excess of $38,000,000,000.

President Wilson, Premier Lloyd George and Premier Orlando are opposing the second and fourth of these demands. The character of these demands is such that it is feared if Germany refuses to sign the treaty the other central powers will follow her example, bringing abouet a situation of added seriousness.

It is understood that Premier Clemenceau has remained obdurate so far.

There are increasing threats from Germany that the Germans will not sign unless they secure economic rights, and this another situation causing apprehension.

It is admitted that in the vent of a refusal the only recourse will be the complete occupation of Ger-

AMERICANS FOIL PLOT BY 'REDS' IN BERLIN

London, March 28.—An uprising in which the Spartacans planned to use thousands of Russian prisoners today in an effort to back up the Bolshevik revolution in Hungary was nipped in the bud by the Americans in Berlin, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from that city.

The Reds had plotted to revolt, seizing arms from the Spandau arsenal for the equipment of several thousand former Russian prisoners of war at Ruhleben. The Americans got wind of the conspiracy and seized the Russians during the night, rushing them out of the city on trains. They were scattered throughout the whole country.

"REDS' AMBASSADOR" CLAIMS RECOGNITION

New York, March 28.—The United States government has "unofficially recognized the credentials of Ludwig C. A. Martens, potential ambassador" from the Lenine-Trotzky government to this country, Mr. Martens has announced. Martens addressed a gathering of Russians, including a considerable number of agitators. Martens had started his address and was speaking in English. "Cut out English," yelled several of his auditors. "This is Russia; speak in Russian." Thereafter Martens spoke in Russian.

Late Cable Bulletins!

London, March 28.—The Polish and Rumanian fronts are to be joined with allied forces on the centre to prevent a merger of the Russian and Hungarian Bolshevik armies, it was evident today from the developments in the East. The Rumanians continued to advance in Galicia, while the Czech troops are in action against Hungary.

London, March 28.—Nicholai Lenine, the Bolshevik premier of Russia, is urging the Hungarian Reds to march upon Vienna, offering the Soviet government at Budapest a loan of 100,000,000 kronen.

London, March 28.—Bills have been submitted by the Socialist government at Vienna, formally deposing the Hapsburgs and abolishing all titles, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from that city today.

London, March 28.—Thirty thousand Welsh miners, who had gone on strike despite the protests of their leaders, returned to work today, breaking the back of the "revolt," said a Central News dispatch from Cardiff.

TUESDAY, MAY 6, FOR PARADE OF 26TH

Tuesday, May 6, today was tentatively picked, for the 26th Division parade by Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, in deference to th erequest of the merchants of Boston.

General Edwards thought the wishes of the business men should be considered. May 6 was agreed upon as the best day for all concerned, provide dthat everything is in readiness on that date.

In speaking of Memorial Sunday, May 4, for the departed heroes of the Twenty-sixth, General Edwards said:

"I have received endorsement of this project from many sources. The Rev. Alexander Mann, D. D., rector of Trinity Church, caled me up, saying he would be very glad to co-operate with other ministers in having special services on this Sunday.

"We want every church in New England to remember the hero dead on that Sunday.

"We can do this for them at least.

"There will be many who may not be able to see the parade but a service of this kind in their own town or village should be well attended. The parents of the boys will have every attention bestowend upon them in getting positions on one of the grand stands and comfortable provision in the way of lodging the night before or after the parade. A committee is looking after this now and will report later."

2 TRANSPORTS ON WAY TO BOSTON

By BERT FORD,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Brest, France, March 28.—Major-General Hale, commanding the 26th (Yankee) Division, sailed for the United States on the transport Mt. Vernon late yesterday. The transport carried the 26th Division staff, the 104th Infantry and the 101st Engineers, a total of 5,600 men.

Colonel Edward L. Logan, commander of the 101st Infantry, sailed this afternoon on the transport America. This transport carried also the 103rd Infantry, commanded by Colonel Frank M. Hume; Company C of the 101st Engineers; the headquarters staff of the 51st Brigade and 200 casuals, a total of 6,834 enlisted men and officers.

On the Agamemnon, which will sail Sunday, will be other units from the 26th Division. The balance will be on their way by April 12.

Brilliant weather prevailed when the first units sailed. When the men got here they found Brest "duck boarded" and in sanitary condition. General Helmick, commanding the port, and his staff did everything possible to facilitate the men's get away. The last units left Le Mans late yesterday.

The health of all of the men was tiptop and all were in good spirits over their departure. The seventeen remaining units are hopeful that transports will be available to carry them before April 12.

The Mt. Vernon, Agamemnon and the America will dock at Boston.

Boston's twenty-five flagpoles are having their topmasts raised today in preparation for the return of the victorious Yankee Division. These topmasts are

Former Kaiser Must Help Pay German War Costs

By ALFRED G. ANDERSEN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, March 28.—The former Kaiser and his entire family are to be called upon to pay their share of the war cost in cold cash. This is the sum and substance of a decision of the Prussian government, according to the interpretation put upon it today.

The decision revokes the exemption from taxation hitherto enjoyed by members of the Prussian royal family and their immediate relatives of the Hanoverian family, the electoral house of Hesse and the former reigning house of Nassau. The clauses relating to Hanover and Hesse-Nassau are aimed at members of the Hohenzollern family who became non-residents of Prussia through intermarriage.

LAWRENCE STRIKERS TO "DEPORT" CHILDREN AGAIN

Lawrence, March 28.—The children of the mill workers of this city will be sent out of the city within a very short time, according to an announcement made today by the strikers' committee. It was not stated when this action will take place, but it was said that the children will be sent to homes of friends outside of this city. It is believed that automobiles will be used. In the 1912 strike, when it was attempted to send children away, one of the most serious of the riots during the strike resulted.

CHANGE ROUTE OF PARADE BY Y. D. BOYS TO GET MORE GRANDSTANDS

75,000 TO VIEW BIG PAGEANT

Final Plans Approved by State, City and Army Officials; Men to March Five and a Half Miles

To accommodate the 75,000 people who will occupy grandstands during the parade of the Twenty-Sixth (Yankee) Division, the route was changed yesterday and the one finally adopted is shown in the accompanying map.

The route accepted by the Governor and Mayor's committees as well as by army officials is:

Forming at Beacon and Charles streets, Beacon street to Park, to Tremont, to Boylston, to Arlington, to the north side of Commonwealth avenue, to Charlesgate West, counter march south side of Commonwealth avenue, to Berkeley, to Boylston, up Boylston to Massachusetts avenue, to Columbus avenue, to Park square.

Colonel Albert S. Williams, chief of staff, in speaking of the change, said:

"The route is now definitely determined after hearing many opinions.

"We were obliged to change the route. When the parade reaches Charlesgate West, it will march down the south side of Commonwealth avenue, so that we will have some of the troops going in one direction and others in another.

"We want to have space for grand stands, and we think that we have it in the space that we have now chosen in this changed route."

When Colonel Williams was asked if this was the final route, he said:

"Yes; this is now settled. The matter has been agreed upon by the Governor and Mayor and by the Army.

"In our preparations for this parade, we want every one to see it. In the distribution of tickets we want those who have a real interest in the parade to see it.

"The route is five and six-tenths miles long.

"This is long enough, and we think that we have covered everything that the parade should have as far as the route is concerned."

WHERE STANDS WILL BE.

Governor Coolidge and other Governors of New England States as well as the New England Congressmen and members of the State Legislature will review the parade in a mammoth stand to be built in front of the State House.

Mayor Peters and members of the City Council will watch the parade from a stand which is to be constructed on the Tremont street side of the Common between the two entrances to the subway opposite the building of Shepard, Norwell Company.

Major-General Edwards and Major-Generals Hale and McCain will review the troops as they pass the junction of Commonwealth avenue and Charlesgate West.

All grandstands, with the exception of the aforementioned and the one to be built on the John Hancock lot, it was decided by the State committee, will be used exclusively by the families and relatives of the members of the 26th Division, former members of the division and Grand Army veterans. This includes families and relatives of men who died while serving in the Yankee Division.

SOLDIERS TO BE HOSTS.

Tickets for the grandstands will be distributed through the soldiers themselves to the members of their families, so that the soldiers themselves may act as hosts at the invitation of the Governor and Legislature.

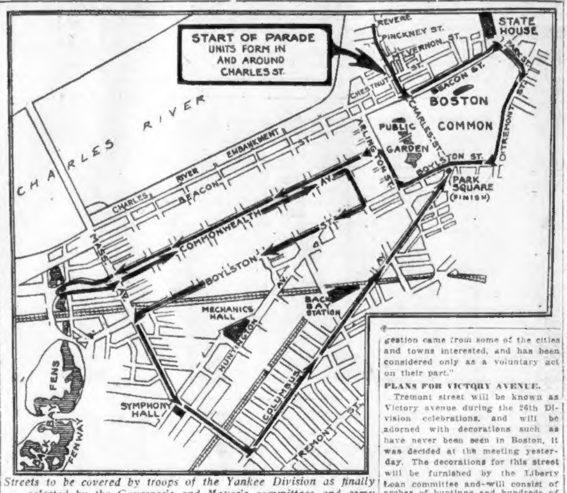
As the result of the proposal of several cities and towns that they be permitted to defray the expenses of the erection of stands for relatives and friends of the 26th Division from their respective cities and towns, the following statements was issued, last night by Louis A. Coolidge, chairman of the State committee:

"The committee has never had any thought that the families of Massachusetts soldiers should be asked to pay for the seats provided on the grandstands by the Commonwealth. The question arose as to whether the whole expense for these stands should be borne by the State or reimbursed in part by the different cities and towns which furnished units of the 26th Division. This suggestion came from some of the cities and towns interested, and has been considered only as a voluntary act on their part."

PLANS FOR VICTORY AVENUE.

Tremont street will be known as Victory avenue during the 26th Division celebrations, and will be adorned with decorations such as have never been seen in Boston, it was decided at the meeting yesterday. The decorations for this street will be furnished by the Liberty Loan committee and will consist of arches of buntings and hundreds of flags.

OFFICIAL ROUTE OF 26TH DIVISION PARADE



Streets to be covered by troops of the Yankee Division as finally selected by the Governor's and Mayor's committees and army officials. The route has been slightly changed from that published Thursday, the south side of Commonwealth avenue and Boylston street to Massachusetts avenue having been included. This is the final plan and will not be changed again.

City Officials Off to New York to Meet Cole on Aquitania

Members of the Mayor's reception committee, together with the City Councillors, left today on the Merchants Limited for New York to greet Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole of the 26th Division, who is expected to arrive on the Aquitania from overseas tomorrow or Sunday.

Secretary "Eddie" Moore was in charge of the party. The members of the party included Councillors Francis J. W. Ford, James A. Watson, Daniel J. McDonald, James T. Moriarty, Daniel W. Lane, Edward F. McLaughlin and John A. Donoghue.

Henry V. Cunningham, Chairman of the Executive Committee, Mrs. Cole, wife of the General, and the General's brother, George, who is a member of the Mayor's committee, and Lieutenant Paul Hines of the committee were also in the party.

TO KEEP 300,000 MEN ABROAD UNTIL PEACE

Ten Thousand for Siberian Front, Says Baker, Soon to Sail for Europe

Washington, March 28.—Upwards of 300,000 men of the U. S. army must be kept in Europe until peace is signed, according to Secretary of War Baker. He also intimates that the 10,000 American troops in Siberia may be retained there much longer than has generally been understood.

Secretary Baker is to leave for France about the 6th of April but will make a very brief stay abroad.

The purpose of his visit is to give final instructions as to closing the business obligations of the American army in Europe. As normally this would require extended time, Mr. Baker's decision to return at an early date is taken to indicate that an extra session of Congress early in May has been decided on by the President.

The extra session would demand the presence here of all the Cabinet officers and especially the chiefs of the army and navy, whose appropriation bills will be considered first. Under the circumstances it will not be surprising if the President and his two war secretaries return on the same vessel.

Mr. Baker stated that troop shipments for the month of March would probably be greater than those of any other month.

All troops except those to be kept until peace is signed have been promised a return to the United States by July 1. It is thought by army men that, if there had been any intention on the part of the President or the Inter-Allied War Council to demand the use of American troops in Hungary and vicinity the fact would have been communicated here by this time.

Declares "Big Four" Stand in Fear of Menace Rolling Up From the East

By International News Service.

London, March 28.—"The 'Big Four' in Paris are engaged, not in imposing terms upon Germany but in negotiating terms," said the Post today. "It took four and a half years to win the victory. It is taking only four and a half months to destroy the fruits. The statesmen are seeking to arrange terms not on the basis of the greatest victory ever obtained, but under fear of the menace rolling up from the east."

Prepare City Flagpoles for Boston Reception to Yankee Division

housed each year against the wintry gales, and it is customary to raise them in the early Summer, according to City Messenger Edward J. Leary, to whose department falls the custody of the city's flagpoles.

Whether there will be a flagpole at the Public Garden to greet with the country's colors the parading 26th is a much mooted question that has not as yet been definitely settled.

The former pole, at Charles and Boylston streets, was erected in 1861 at a cost of $428. It was hit by lightning on August 3, 1908, and repairs were effected.

On April 25, 1918, a new trestle was installed at a cost of $88.75, but on August 12, 1918, the pole again was shattered by lightning, leaving a blackened stump. This was removed last week.

Considerable agitation has been brought about to have the pole replaced before the return of the 26th. No action was taken at the time it was last hit because of war conditions, and the delay incident to getting a new stick from Oregon. The former pole was 150 feet high.

Chairman James B. Shea of the Park Commission told the American he does not believe it necessary to replace the pole, in view of the fact that there is a perfectly good pole on Boston Common, which he believes to be sufficient for the purpose.

Two Boston firms, it is learned, have material on hand from which the pole could be constructed and installed in a week's time, if necessary, at a cost estimated at from $650 to $1,100. The head of one firm intimated that he had been approached to make a tentative bid for the work, but that no further action had been taken.

In the event of disagreement between employes and employers the matter will be adjusted by the War Labor Board.

Foreign Ministers of the Great Powers Begin Conferences

By ROBERT J. PREW,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, March 28.—The foreign ministers of the "Big Four" began a series of conferences today to work out a policy on the same lines as that of the daily conference of President Wilson and the British, French and Italian premiers. The object is to hasten and clarify the work in hand. Those present at the initial session were Secretary Lansing, A. J. Balfour, M. Pichon and Baron Sonnino.

Opposition is developing against any clause in the League of Nations covenant specifically safeguarding the Monroe Doctrine. Other nations are attempting in a similar way to protect their own interests.

Japanese Renew Fight for Equal Rights in League Covenant

By an International Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, March 28.—Contrary to reports current all day that Japan had definitely abandoned her insistence upon the insertion of a race equality clause in the League of Nations covenant, I am able to state, upon reliable information reaching me today, that not only have the Japanese delegates not agreed to modify their original demands regarding this clause, but are renewing them before the league commission. The text of the clause urged by them follows:

"Equality of the nations being a fundamental principle of the League of Nations, the high contracting parties agree to accord equal and just treatment as soon as possible to aliens belonging to member nations of the league, undertaking no discrimination either in law or in fact, on account of race or nationality."

Lloyd George Declares Disarmament Is Essential Principle of the League

By EARLE C. REEVES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, March 28.—A plea for disarmament as one of the essential conditions to the success of the League of Nations is made by Premier Lloyd George in a message which will be printed in the League of Nations edition of the Manchester Guardian tomorrow.

The message says:

"The League of Nations will prove fruitless if it is to be no more than a new piece of international organization. What matters is that the units which make up this organization shall be inspired by a real determination to work in close harmony for the betterment of liberty and mankind.

"America and Great Britain, who have taken such a leading and honorable part in promoting their beneficent scheme, must give practical demonstration of their belief in it. Disarmament is an essential condition to its success.

"We cannot expect nations ravaged by war to trust their desolated land to the protection of the league if its advocates hesitate to show any confidence themselves in its guardianship. To set up a society of powers to ensure fraternity among the peoples of the earth while at the same time armies and navies are being increased to ensure effective fratricide is to make a mockery of a great ideal.

"Nations must not let themselves believe that, having drawn up the constitution of the League on paper, the peace of the world has been made secure. If they allow themselves to be misled by this policy they will only be awakened by a new war.

"They have now to see to it that the League of Nations be made an effective instrument for the solution of every international problem by their own reading of its terms, and make sacrifices themselves in its behalf.

"All our hopes are to keep the world from a repetition of the unfathomable cataclysm of 1914, and centre ourselves on working out a practical means whereby the nations of the earth can conduct the common affairs of the world with friendly cooperation instead of in jealous rivalry.

"The League represents the greatest attempt ever made to substitute reason and justice for force and intrigue as the gooverning principle in international relations."

WOOD SCORES 'SHORE NAVY' SLACKERS

Admiral Denounces Men Who Dodged Draft by Getting "Bomb-Proof" Jobs

Who are the "shore navy slackers" in this First Naval District? What are the "bomb-proof jobs" they hold?

Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, commanding the district, openly denounced at a banquet at the City Club men in this community who, he said, dodged the army draft and trenches by getting into the "shore navy."

Rear-Admiral Wood in explaining his remarks to the American today, said that he did not wish anybody who heard or read his remarks to get the idea that his forthcoming assignment to sea duty was because of any political pressure brought to bear on Washington by the slackers or their friends.

"I came to Boston at the express request of the Secretary of the Navy," said Admiral Wood, "although I wished an assignment to sea duty at the time. I have since applied to be assigned to sea duty, and my being ordered there is the result of my own request, and not at all the result of any civilian influence. I want the American to make this plain in order to allay any misapprehension which may have arisen from the garbled report of my address which appeared in a morning newspaper."

He said that these slackers who held bomb-proof jobs in the land forces of the navy were the very first ones to shout for discharge when the armistice was signed. They wanted to get out of service even ahead of sailors with dependants. They brought political influence to bear in their scrambling for release.

The admiral was one of the speakers at the sixth annual dinner of "Sons of Members" at the City Club. Among those present were Governor Coolidge and Mayor Peters.

Admiral Wood said in exposing the land-going naval slackers:

"I do not wish to discredit those men of the navy who preferred active service and were assigned to land duty, but there is no denying that there were men in this community who, when they found the draft getting close to them, demanded places in the shore navy to escape going to the front-line trenches.

"They are now giving me trouble in trying to get back to civil life, many of them resorting to political influence, but I tell you freely that I am more ready to grant the request of the man who writes to me simply saying that his old mother is sick than he who writes to ten congressmen to get him out of the service.

"It is one of the most trying experiences I have ever passed through, and it is a relief to go from it."

SCORES OF GREATER BOSTON GIRLS LURED AWAY BY MORMONS

YOUTHFUL "ELDERS" ACTIVE

Mrs. George W. Coleman Exposes Widespread Campaign; Many Are Converted

By ELIZABETH ELLAM.

"Mormon agents, working quietly among the girls of Boston and neighboring towns, have already taken scores of them into the homes of Mormon elders in Utah, and many more have become converts to the faith of the Mormon church. I know of one instance, in a suburb of Boston, where a group of twenty girls was taken away, not very long ago, to homes of elders in Utah."

Such is the charge made by Mrs. George W. Coleman, prominent club woman and president of the Massachusetts Council for Patriotic Service, which has made a recent investigation into the workings of the Morman church and the methods of its agents or "elders," as they are styled.

HAS NAMES OF GIRLS.

Mrs. Coleman does not generalize on the subject. She has names and addresses of girls who have been converted to the Mormon faith, and who have left homes and families to follow the leaders of that faith to the church home in Utah. Although she does not make these addresses public, she has them to substantiate the charges that she does not fear to make.

"Since the war," Mrs. Coleman says, "Mormon agents have become much more active. Two years ago the granddaughter of Brigham Young made an address upon the subject, in which she said that 'polygamy was the salvation of the world.' She further stated that the Mormons had always believed that polygamy was divinely appointed, but that they had ceased the practise of it for a few years, because of the United States authorities.

"The Mormons says now that polygamy is imperative under the present conditions, that it is necessary to repopulate a world devastated by the great war.

"The Mormons would like to see conditions here as they are in Russia, where women are regarded as mere instruments of reproduction.

"I know, of my own personal knowledge, of a mother and a daughter on whom a Mormon elder was working, and the last time that I knew of them they were all ready to go with him to Utah.

SEEK SCHOOL GIRLS.

"In Dorchester there was another case of the wife and the daughter of a carpenter. They fell under the influence of Elder Williams, and they went together to the home of Elder Williams in Utah and are living now in his family.

"Some time ago, after giving an address in a South End church on this same subject, a group of high school girls waited for me at the close. Every one of those girls had been approached by Mormon elders and every girl knew the names of all the elders working in that section of the city.

"Elders in another group, not far from Boston, a short time ago took twenty young women from that group of people straight to Utah. On the opposite side of the city, where the same investigation was pursued, a mother told me that her daughter and her friends, all of high school age, had been approached by Mormon elders, that these men waited for them as they came from school, and that they spoke to them on one pretext or another. She said that the men spoke to them, too, on the little skating pond that had been flooded by the city to furnish sport for that neighborhood.

"The elders for the most part are young men, from twenty-two to thirty years old, I should say. They do not select their vocation, you understand, but are appointed to that service for the period of perhaps two years. Naturally the men best suited for the work are selected.

POLYGAMY IN BACKGROUND.

"Not a word is said about polygamy, or the multiplicity of wives in the Mormon household, until the entire confidence of the woman or the girl is won. They generally point out the advantages of the West as a newer country, of greater opportunities, especially a young country for young people. They point to the opportunity for social advancement, for the majority of the girls do not expect much social advancement here.

"They wait until the complete confidence of the girl is secured, until it would be a very difficult matter to shake her faith, before a word is mentioned about polygamy. Often they wait until the girls are baptized in the Mormon church before they advance this precept of their faith.

"There was one instance of that in Manchester. A woman had been speaking on the subject, and at the close a girl came up to her, and said very seriously, 'Was what you were saying really true?' 'It was, indeed,' answered the speaker. And the girl turned away in despair, saying, 'What in the world is to become of me? I was baptized in the Mormon church last Sunday.' She had never heard this precept of the Mormon faith.

NEED LEGISLATIVE ACTION.

"But—though we cannot fail to observe the spread of Mormonism, not only here but in other States of the Union, th[illegible] are remedies being applied. [illegible] two consecutive years a motio[illegible] been before the House to amend the Constitution and make it forever a crime in the United States to practice polygamy. Work on it was laid aside on account of war measures.

"We felt that prohibition and suffrage were two issues that should precede it. But now prohibition has gone over, and suffrage is on the point of winning, and we are now going ahead, ready to say 'Now it is our turn. We waited for you, now you must listen to us.' Congressman Gillett is going to advance the measure this term, as he has done before, and we feel that this will be a direct blow to Mormonism, right at its heart.

"The National Reform Association of Pittsburgh is preparing for a strenuous campaign on the subject and we hope that the end of Mormonism is very near at hand."

IDENTIFY BODY OF MAN FOUND IN RIVER

W. J. Donovan, Picked Out of Merrimac at Newburyport, Missing Since Jan. 18

Haverhill, March 28.—The body of the young man found in the Merrimac River at Newburyport Wednesday was identified today as that of William J. Donovan of Portland, Me., employe of the Portland Street Company, who had been missing from that city since January 18 and who registered at the Hotel Thorndike in this city on the night of January 18 as "J. H. Hanlon, Portland, Me."

The mystery as to the exact cause of death remains. There is a pronounced bruise over the right eye. Whether Donovan was a victim of foul play, whether he committed suicide or fell into the river, which flows back of the Thorndike, has yet to be determined.

The chief item in the description of the clothing on the body was the monogram "W. J. D." on the cuff links and the same initials on the shirt. But from a description of the body and of other parts of the clothing, John Swett, proprietor of the Thorndike, believed the body might be that of the young man, about twenty years old, who registered at his hotel January 18.

Swett went to Newburyport today and identified the body as that of "Hanlon" of Portland. The Portland police were notified and givne a description of the clothing. They replied that the clothing corresponded to that worn away by the missing William J. Donovan. The parents of the Portland youth have started for Newburyport.

Donovan, or "Hanlon," was at the Hotel Thorndike Jan. 18 and 19. He had his room engaged for the 20th also. But he did not return that night. The same night, however, sounds of a splash, followed by cries, were heard from the direction of the river back of the hotel.

Young Donovan is said to have been making big war wages as a steel worker. He seemed to have plenty of money while at the Hotel Thorndike

CHILD DANCERS TO TROOP TO CAMBRIDGE BUNGALOW FOR CELEBRATION

More than 200 of the prettiest and most talented young girls of Greater Boston will gather at the Bungalow Theatre on Larch road, Cambridge, tomorrow to celebrate the third anniversary of the founding of the Child Players' League. Miss Ruth Fielding, the ingenue of the Somerville Theatre, who founded the league and had the bungalow built three years ago when she was only thirteen years of age, will be the guest of honor at the banquet and entertainment.

Professionals will entertain the children, who will be accompanied by their mothers. Games will be arranged for the children under seven years and other games for children who are older. Dancing will be conducted for all.

Today the children were busy making the bungalow ready for tomorrow's celebration. Little Misses Mildred and Olive Olson and Ellen Perkins paused from their work in a final rehearsal to pose in most engaging manner for the photographer.

The Child Players' League represents the growth of the idea of a thirteen-year-old girl, Miss Fielding. It was Miss Fielding who three years ago, with a vision far beyond her years, prevailed upon her parents to build the bungalow so that the children in the vicinity of her home might have the chance to develop any talent that they might have for acting and dancing. She herself undertook the work of teaching the girls both older and younger than herself.

COLD SPELL ON HEELS OF THE STORM

Prepare for a cold wave tonight or immediately after the present rainy spell today. There is to be a drop of between 25 and 28 degrees some time late this afternoon and night. Also there is a strong possibility that after the rain there may be slight snow flurries, followed by a cold wave. So the weather man says.

Boston and New England will not be the only place affected. Early today it was snowing in New York, Atlantic City and Burlington, Vermont. Fair weather, however, prevails throughout the other sections of the country, except in the southern part of New England, where the present storm is located centrally, causing rains along the coast. There is snow and sleet falling in the southern portions of New England.

Throughout the Atlantic States, it is much colder, with temperatures ranging below freezing as far south as Texas. Elsewhere throughout the country it is growing warmer. Today's forecast adds there will be moderate west gales diminishing Saturday.

STATE ASSOCIATES TO ELECT OFFICERS

The State Associates Club will entertain its members on April 2, at Hotel Bellevue. The annual meeting for the election of officers will be called to order at 6:30 o'clock. At 7 o'clock a buffet supper will be served, and at 7:30 o'clock the members will listen to Lieutenant Harry G. Milson of the First Canadian Contingent on the subject of "Getting Together."

Found guilty of breaking and entering and stealing vestments valued at $20, John F. Herrington, twenty-two, in a soldier's uniform and giving his address as Fort Strong, was sentenced to ten months in the House of Correction by Judge Joseph R. Churchill in Dorchester Court today.

Sentence was suspended until Monday to give Herrington the right to appeal, and to permit the police to get in touch with the military authorities.

THEATRE TICKET BROKERS HARD HIT BY TAX

Cabaret Admission Also Increased by New Law in Effect Next Tuesday

Theatre ticket brokers are heavily hit by taxes which go into effect next Tuesday according to dispatches today frobm Washington. Cabaret admissions will also be increased by the new tax.

Brokers are required by the new revenue law to pay 5 per cent. of the excess charged above the usual box office price, providing this excess is 50 cents or less, and 50 per cent. if the excess is more than 50 cents above the box office charge. This is in addition to the ordinary tax of one cent on each 10 cents charged for theatre tickets.

The excess is figured on the box office charge plus the ordinary tax, the broker paying the tax.

The new tax is expected to limit brokers' extra charges in many cases to 50 cents. Purchasers of tickets from brokers will be required to pay the usual tax of 1 per cent. on each 10 cents charged by the broker.

If tickets are sold at theatres "in excess of the regular or established price" they are to be taxed 50 per cent. on the excess.

Internal revenue bureau regulations to be issued soon will define what shall constitute "the regular or established price."

A tax of 1½ per cent. on each 10 cents or fraction charged as admission to cabarets is levide this year instead of 1 per cent. as provided in last year's law, and 20 per cent. of the bill for food and drinks is to be considered for admission, if no specific admission charge is made.

Club dues and initiation fees exceeding $10 a year are taxable at 10 per cent.

Transportation, insurance and stamp taxes also go into effect next Tuesday. The new act lays a tax of 3 per cent. on freight charges, approximately 5 per cent. on express charges, 8 per cent. on passenger and Pullman fares and 8 per cent. on oil pipe line charges.

For telephone or telegraph messages on which charges are between 15 and 50 cents the tax will be 5 cents, and if the charge is more than 50 cents the tax will be 10 cents. Ten per cent. is assessed on leased wire titals.

BOARD VETOES LAWRENCE PROBE

Also Votes Against Investigation by Individual Members; Wood Silent on Action

There will be no investigation of the Lawrence strike by the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration as proposed by Commissioner C. S. Wood of that body. For the board has not only voted to reject Commissioner Wood's motion for an investigation to determine the responsibility for the strike, but also has passed a resolution declaring that no authority has been given by the board to any of its members to conduct a separate investigation such as was purposed by Mr. Wood.

Commissioner Wood made his first motion for an investigation on March 8, for the purpose of determining the responsibility for the strike. The motion was laid on the table. When asked today if he cared to discuss the motion he replied negatively. Chairman Willard S. Howland and Commissioner Mullen then voted to reject the motion.

It was expected at today's meeting that some reference to Mr. Wood's announced intention of holding a hearing in Lawrence City Hall, in company with William J. Kerwin of New Bedford and George H. Wrenn of Springfield would be made. None was made, however, and after the meeting Mr. Wood declined to be interviewed as to his purpose.

At a special meeting yesterday afternoon, which Mr. Wood declined to attend, resolutions were adopted stating that the board had authorized no hearing in Lawrence and did not authorize the retention of any agents or experts in connection with such an investigation.

According to word from Lawrence today, the strike situation has assumed a more serious aspect in the demand by the German operators for a forty-four-hour week and a 25 per cent. increase in wages.

O'SULLIVAN, THE TENOR, HAS A NEW DAUGHTER

John O'Sullivan, the Irish tenor of the Chicago Opera Company, who sang in Boston last Sunday, has reason to be proud today for his wife has just presented him with a daughter. Mother and child are doing well.

Mme. O'Sullivan was a French concert pianist. She was a pupil at the Paris Conservatory in the piano department when she met young John O'Sullivan, studying for grand opera in the vocal department of the same great school. Their acquaintance ripened into love, and they were married soon after their graduation.

Mr. O'Sullivan's new daughter is the fourth child. The oldest boy, Jacques, is with his parents in New York, and the two younger children are with their grandparents in Paris. O'Sullivan's Boston friends will have an opportunity to congratulate him when he returns to Symphony Hall, May 4.

CALL EXPERTS IN WILKINS MYSTERY

Finger Prints and Bloodstains Under Investigation in Long Island Murder

New York, March 28.—A pathologist of national fame was engaged today to make a complete blood analysis of many finger-prints and cloth stains in the Long Beach home of Mrs. Julia Wilkins. Her husband, Dr. Walter Keene Wilkins, is in jail, indicted for her murder on the night of February 27.

This analyst will visit the scene of the crime and examine the findings of the Burns agency detectives and County Detective Carman Plant. The work will be directed by District Attorney Charles R. Weeks.

A souvenir postcard of a bathing girl upon a pedestal, which was posed in a Greenwich Village studio, has started detectives searching as far away as Washington for the original girl. This unusual photograph was found among the personal effects of the indicted doctor. It bears the name of a young womtn who has already been mentioned in the case. The authorities expect to question several persons about this photograph.

GREENWICH VILLAGE PICTURE.

The picture is said to have been taken in the "Village Studio Gallery" of an artist named Oscar H. Sholin, located upon a balcony floor of the Bohemian Artists' Building at No. 51 West Tenth street. Dr. W. Keene Wilkins was not unknown to the village. As rent collector for his wife he often visited her property at No. 422 Greenwich street.

It became known today that the autorities have located a coil of wire in the Long Branch home of Dr. Wilkins. Under powerful magnifying glasses it matches up on the several ends, with wire that was bound around the "murder hammer." The steel wire ends indicate that the strands had been recently severed. There are sixteen strands to the wire.

There was also found near the roll of wire a pair of pliers. The detectives will not disclose whether these pliers were used, but they are guarding them to be shown to several persons.

District Attorney Weeks has become officially silent. It is known, however, that the discoveries during the past few days by County Detective Carman Plant, and by Allen C. Myers, chief aide to William J. Burns, have eliminated absolutely the search for burglars.

WEEKS GRATEFUL FOR AID.

The district attorney is believed to have one or more witnesses whose stories are being closely guarded and who may not appear in this case before the trial. The prosecutor is bombarded by mail with theories about the crime and offers to solve it. But he is also receiving invaluable aid from letter writers who are supplying important leads to new evidence. He desires to thank these for their interest in behalf of justice.

Dr. Wilkins is again growing a beard. By the time he is called for trial he may reappear with the distinguished "mutton chops" which marked his appearance before the crime. He was clean shaven when found in the Pennsylvania station.

Little has been told to the police about that "flight" by the doctor. The district attorney is said to have a tale to unfold about it, but is expected to withhold it for the trial jury. Detectives have hinted at interesting disclosures of the doctor's movements during the period he was missing.

FLAY WIDOW IN HARDY LOVE CASE

Woman Who Sued for Share of Hallett Estate Accused as Bigamist

"She was playing a big game. She took up with this man when he was under conservatorship for mental weakness. If she can get away with it what protection has any man from a woman of this type?"

Thus did Attorney Hugh D. McLellan score Mrs. Maxine J. Hardy, forty-nine-year-old widow, who is suing eighty-three-year-old Daniel B. Hallett of the Hotel Tuileries to recover $50,000, alleged to have been promised her in a deathbed agreement by his son, Daniel E. Hallett. The case will go to the jury today.

Attorney McLellan declared that the plaintiff committed an act of bigamy when she married Lucien Meyer in 1909, knowing that he had married another woman the previous April.

PROTECTION NEEDED.

He charged her with having taken up with the younger Hallett when he was mentally weak, and declared:

"Is this kind of thing to be permitted in this country? If a woman looking as Mrs. Hardy looked when on the witness stand can get away with it, what protection has any man from a woman of her type?

Counsel for Mrs. Hardy was expected to close just before the noon recess and the case was expected to be in the hands of the jury by early afternoon.

McLellan declared that young Hallett was under the influence of liquor when he accompanied Mrs. Hardy to the license bureau. Mrs. Hardy not only filled out the intention but signed Hallett's name, he declared.

ESTATE HAS DWINDLED.

"The son admitted to his father that he had been drinking heavily prior to applying for the license," McLellan, said. "But Mrs. Hardy did not intend to hurt her own interest and that is why she signed the release of marriage which his father drew up. She wanted to keep the ship going along on an even keel.

The son's estate, worth $100,000 at that time, has now dwindled to $11,000 with the payment of outstanding bills, McLellan added.

"And if there was such a promise by the son, the plaintiff is entitled to only one-half of $11,000," said McLellan. "But we deny that any such promise was ever made."

Mrs. Hardy, he insisted, knew that her first marriage to Meyer was a fake because he told her so when she confronted him with intimacies with another woman. She knew, too, that he was already married at that time, he declared. But, notwithstanding this, she journeyed to New York with him and married him.

BRITISH COLUMBIA TO "TURN TO RIGHT" SOON

Victoria, B. C., March 28.—British Columbia at last is to be Americanized. A resolution approved by the Legislature provides for all traffic turning to the right "like the rest of the American Continent." The rule in the past has been in accordance with the English custom of turning to the left. Because the legislators want the people to be prepared for this shock, the law was not changed, but probably will be by the next session of the Legislature.

SELL FRESH FISH AT COST BY EXPRESS

American's Stores Continue to Enlarge Its Army of Buyers

Fish at cost for all New England! A chance for the residents of the smallest hamlets, as well as the largest cities, to get fine seafood direct from the vessel to their back door!

This is what Alden A. Mills, the fish expert of the Boston American Fish Stores, is now prepared to offer. He has worked out a plan whereby, for the first time in the history of the New England fisheries, fish brought into this port may be packed, iced and shipped direct from fisherman to consumer within twenty-four hours, and at cost!

Mr. Mills is interested in over a score of large fishing vessels entering this port. He is prepared, while maintaining the supply to the Boston American Fish Stores already established, to pack fresh haddock and cod aboard his vessels in twenty-pound boxes, place it in a freezer for twenty-four hours to properly prepare it for shipment, and send it by express to any address in New England. The first shipments made in this way will be made next Thursday, although orders may be mailed today.

Fish sold in Boston American Fish Stores within ten miles of Boston is sold for 5 cents a pound. In the larger places outside this limit, where stores have been established, 6 cents is charged for the fish. Because of the high cost of boxing, icing and handling the fish to be sent by express it is necessary to charge 7 cents a pound. Expressage on the fish will be paid by the consumer, and will amount to from one and one half to two cents a pound, depending on the regular express rates.

EXPENSES HEAVIER.

Here is the reason why it costs more to ship this fish in this way than to sell it over the counter in Boston:

Cost of boxes, oiled paper and labor of packing, 1 cent a pound.

Cost of freezing, one-half cent a pound.

Cost of extra transportation before expressing—one-half cent a pound.

Which, added to the 5 cents a pound charged in the local stores where fish is being sold for 5 cents a pound at cost, makes a total of 7 cents a pound.

The reason for shipping only in twenty-pound boxes is that this is the smallest amount that can be shipped at this price. This need not deter the smallest of families from enjoying the fish, however.

Here is a chance to prove the advantages of community buying. Get three other families to club in with you and buy a twenty-pound box. These fish cost from 12 to 20 cents a pound in the average store, and indeed cannot be bought at all there, for until now it has been impossible to buy as fresh fish in most stores.

GOES FRESH TO BUYER.

It has been the custom to handle the fish many times, with a delay of several days before it reaches the consumer. This fish goes direct from the vessel to the kitchen, the sole delay being a few hours in cold storage to prepare the fish for proper shipment. A rubber stamp will show the date and hour every package goes into storage. As this fish will be shipped interstate throughout New England, to falsify this stamp would be a Federal offence, punishable by heavy penalties.

Get your neighbors to join with you and order a box of this fish!

Remember the fish is shipped in twenty-pound boxes. It costs seven cents a pound. You pay the express. Send only United States money orders, payable to Alden A. Mills, No. 101 Tremont street, in payment for the fish. No other form of payment will be accepted.

The first shipments will not be made until one week from today, Thursday, April 3. You may send your order any time—the sooner the better.

At present Mr. Mills is only prepared to offer haddock and cod for shipment in this manner. Later he expects to offer other varieties at similarly low prices. Watch the Boston American for announcements which will lower the cost of food!

STORES GROW IN SUCCESS.

This New England-wide extension of the Boston American fish stores to aid the wage earner in getting food at cost will in no way interfere with the operation of the established stores.

Make out a money order today for $1.40 and mail it to Alden A. Mills, No. 101 Tremont street, Boston, Mass. Next Friday you will get food for thirty people for your $1.40 plus the express charge, which, according to present government rates, should not amount to more than 40 cents to any part of New England. Included in the express rates is a small goverment war tax. You pay the express yourself to the government employees, so you will know just what it amounts to.

Eat fish. Make every day a Friday. It will be good for your stomach, your brain and your pocketbook. The American is out to help the public help itself.

MADE MILLIONS AS FISH COMPANY PROMOTER

F. Munroe Dyer, New York broker, who cleaned up several thousand dollars by promoting the fish industry in Boston and also added two million more for similar promotion in New York. He was a prominent figure at the United States government investigation into the New England Fish Exchange in the Metropolis, and announced there that fish can be sold at a lower price, with as much profit to stockholders of fish companies, as at higher prices.

FISH REBATES EXPLAINED BY FULHAM

Jury Told How Stockholders of New England Co. Profited Through Purchases

Fulham's testimony showed that, while representatives of the Bay State Fishing Company of Maine were bidding on the Exchange, boxes of fish wyere piled outside the stores of the companyl.

Fulham said:

"While the Bay State Fishing Company of Maine was not registering its fish, they were enjoying the privileges of the Exchange."

CAUSED EXTRA PRICE.

"What effect did this have on the market," asked Mr. Webber.

Witness said that such bidding "warranted an extra price."

The prosecutor also brought out that the price had been boosted as high as 10 cents a pound.

Q.—What is meant by taking the fish off the exchange? A.—Instead of advertising and listing fish for sale it was sold direct from the vessel.

Q.—To whom? A.—Generally to its own stores.

Rebates from the New England Fish Company to stockholders buying a certain amount of fish were explained in preceding testimony of Mr. Fulham under cross-examination by Henry F. Hurlburt, counsel for the thirty defendants.

On request of Hurlburt, the witness produced the contract made between the Fulham, Herbert Company and the Boston Fish Pier Company on October 20, 1916. The contract was offered as an exhibit and was read to the jury. It covered details of the future management of the Fulham, Herbert Company under control of the Boston Fish Pier Company.

REBATE EXPLAINED.

One phrase referred to "box dividends." Mr. Fulham explained that this was a rebate obtained from the New England Fish Company, saying:

"If a stockholder of the New England Fish Company purchased halibut to the extent of 6,000 pounds in the course of a year he would, at the end of the year, receive a rebate—namely, a percentage of the total number of pounds."

Mr. Fulham testified that the old Bay State Fish Company of Massachusetts was forced to list its total fish production on the New England Fish Exchange in 1911. He explained that this was brought about by the adoption of new rules and regulations by the exchange in that year.

RIGID RULE OF EXCHANGE.

By some of the rules concerns were unable to purchase fish on the exchange that they could not produce. The Bay State Fish Company of Massachusetts was actually compelled to place all its freshly caught fish upon the exchange market in order to conduct a successful business, according to Fulham's testimony.

He said that he believed the Bay State made a protest at that time.

Further testimony by Fulham revealed that seven directors of the New England Fish Exchange were directly associated with subsidiary concerns of the Boston Fish Pier Company. The remaining two directors, Robert E. Watts and William McKeown, were affiliated with concerns associated with the Bay State Fish Company of Massachusetts.

Previous to the examination of Fulham, Assistant District Attorney Webber presented a sheaf of stock ceritificates of the Bay State Fishing Company of Maine, the new company, which he said were signed by F. Munroe Dyer, president, and Ernest James, treasurer, but had all "run back" to Dyer's control. The total number of shares ran into the hundred thousand.

Mr. Warren had recovered about two weeks ago from a severe attack of influenza, when stricken with pneumonia.

He was one of the most prominent men of the city, belonging to all of the fraternal orders and all of the clubs. He was proprietor of the Warren Carpet Cleaning Company which he enlarged until it became a hardware specialty house.

He served in the Malden Common Council for three terms, beginning in 1893, two terms on the Board of Aldermen and three years on the street and water commission. He resigned from this office in 1906 to become mayor. He served for two terms in that capacity, later returning to the street and water commission, of which he became chairman in 1914.

His step-daughter, Mrs. Fred O. Johnson, with whom he made his home, survives him.

THINKS HE IS DREAMING AS RENT IS DECREASED

Cleveland, March 28.—D. F. Ryan has been pinching himself for three days to see if he is awake.

His rent was lowered—lowered voluntarily after he had been notified that it would be raised.

Ryan appeared before the Federal Rent Board here with Salvatore Bondi, his landlord, to protest against an increase from $35 to $40 a month. "I've got a son in Italy——" Ryan started to say.

"That's enough," quickly interrupted Bondi. "Your rent will be $30."

BERLIN WORKERS PLEDGE AID TO HUNGARIANS

Berlin, March 28.—"We promise to support the Hungarian proletariat with all our power, and we will not rest until final victory of Socialism in all countries has been won," says a congratulatory message from the Berlin Workers' and Soldiers' Council to the Hungarian Central Soviet. The message was voted on unanimously at a plenary session of the council.

Says Husband Twisted Her Wrists to Near Breaking Point

Pearl Tupper Habich of Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, sought a divorce from Judge Hall from Henry J. Habich, an auto driver in the fire prevention service of the army in France.

She said: "Maybe twice a week he turned my wrists until I was afraid he would break my arms.

"He used to strike me across the face with a wet towel," she continued. And Judge Hall inquired, "He didn't do it to be jovial or to amuse himself?"

"Oh, no," replied Mrs. Habich. "He did it when we argued."

Judge Hall told Attorney Thomas Walsh that he would prefer to have a statement from the husband in France that the latter was willing that the divorce should be heard uncontested, but that of course the wife was entitled on the evidence to a divorce.

$64,000,000 Worth of Chocolate Almond Bars

Listen, Boston!!

Ever hear the facts about chocolate almond bars?

I can tell them to you.

I'm the "Touraine Chocolate" man.

I've been in the chocolate business for years.

I've watched this almond bar business from the start.

"Some day," I said, "I'll go into this almond bar business myself. I'll make a bar that is a bar. In the meantime I'll look on, think a lot, and say little."

Well sir, half a hundred different makes or brands of chocolate almond bars came out.

The almond bar idea carried the country by storm.

Last year the American public consumed sixty-four million dollars' worth of them.

People bought them so fast that the makers didn't stop to make them any better.

In fact, it got so you had to hunt for the almonds.

I said, "Now is my chance. I'll make my chocolate the French way (not the German way or the Swiss way—but the French way).

"And I'll have it chock-full of almonds—fresh, best grade almonds.

"I'll make a bar so crispy and good that when you sink your teeth into it you'll get a new sensation.

"Yes, I'll make it so lickin' good that you'll always reach for that yellow label with the word 'Touraine' on it.

And you'll remember Duane, the man who makes the chocolate almond bar that is different and better."

HARRY B. DUANE,
President,
The Touraine Company.

(To be Continued.)

P.S.—The next installment will tell how I went to France, how it took two years to perfect my automatic chocolate mixer, thermo, moulder and cooler, all-in-one; and why they can't follow me or match my almond bar at any price.

OPPOSITION TO TROLLEY BILL IS HEAVY

Supporters of Measure Charge Jitneys Make Inroad of $1,250,000 Yearly

The bill proposed by street railway interests at the State House hearing before the committee on street railways, brought out many interesting features. The opponents to the measure are heard today. Among those opposing the measure are Mayor Daniel J. Coakley of Chicopee and Attorney Edward A. McClintock of Springfield.

The new bill is sufficiently broad to give railway lines about everything they seek through legislation, but opposition is heavy.

A point brought out by the opponents was the inroads which jitney companies are making upon street railways. It was shown that there are 938 jitney companies doing business in Massachusetts and they are taking out of the street railways about $1,250,000 per year.

Relief from taxation was another point which the proponents asked for. H. Ware Barnum, counsel for the trustees of the Elevated Railway Company, said: "There is absolute relief needed by roads from taxation. Under the present plan many roads will never show anything by deficiencies."

Orphan Girl Pleads for Return of Bag, Her Entire Funds

The return of a blue purplish handbag lost somewhere between the Jordan Marsh and Filene stores would be greatly appreciated by Miss Olive C. Snow, twenty years old, of No. 14 Worcester street, a student at a business school.

The bag, containing about $35 in money, some keys and a handkerchief, was all the girl had, and most of it was to defray her expenses at school.

Miss Snow is at a loss to understand how she lost the bag. She missed it when she was about to pay for goods purchased in a Boston store.

If the person who picked up the missing bag would communicate with the loser, who is an orphan, it would eliminate considerable concern on the part of Miss Snow.

$20,000,000 WOOL CARGOES ON WAY

Ten Vessels en Route to Boston With Huge Consignments —Foreign Warehouses Full

Cargoes of wool worth approximately $20,000,000 are on the way to Boston from ports in South Africa and Australia in the holds of ten vessels, including one steamer, three full-rigged ships, four barks and two schooners, it was learned today.

The fleet comprises the steamship Veenbergen now due from Cape Town; the ships Tonawanda from Wellington, N. Z.; Brynhilda and Manuel Caragol from Algoa Bay, South Africa; the barks Nordstjerne from Melbourne; Ceres from Sydney, N. S. W.; Cambusdoon from Sydney, N. S. W., and Amazon from Cape Town; schooners William Nottingham and Paul E. Thurlow from Algoa Bay.

Several of the sailing craft are expected to arrive soon. In addition to wool, nearly all have consignments of hides, skins, ore and other merchandise.

The warehouses at Australian and South African ports are said to be packed with wool awaiting shipment to Boston, and it is being moved as fast as vessels can be secured.

When conditions at Argentina become normal again, resumption of wool shipments from Buenos Ayres to Boston is looked for. Nearly all of the staple now on the way is consigned to United States government account.

NEW AYER CAMP LAUNDRY GIVES JOY TO MEN

Prices Cut to Low Figure Under Direction of Quartermaster Corps

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, March 28.—Seldom has this cantonment been more pleased at an order than over that order posted today which announced the official opening of the new camp laundry operated by the salvage division of the Quartermaster Corps on April 1. Prices are remarkably low and it is expected that many of the civilian laundries in and about Ayer will close down as a result.

Each enlisted man will be charged only one dollar a month for laundry work. The price list shows, among other low charges, that one cent will be the cost for the laundrying of cotton socks, handkerchiefs, towels, bathcloths and napkins. Collars will cost two cents, stock collars, three cents, aprons, three cents and cuffs, four cents.

BAN ON LAUNDRY AGENTS.

The laundry will serve officers, field clerks, army nurses, corpswomen, enlisted men, welfare workers, salvage workers and government schools of various kinds that may be situated around the camp.

With the opening of the laundry agencies will be prohibited from soliciting or collecting laundry at this camp. All enlisted men will be required to send their clothes to the camp laundry and a non-commissioned officer will arrange for the collection and delivery of laundry for the men of each company.

An order relative to claims for damage against the laundry was posted today and reads as follows:

"Claims for damages must be made within forty-eight hours after delivery to sender and must be accompanied by the laundry ticket. No claims without the original laundry ticket will be considered. Such claims should be made to the non-commissioned officer in charge of laundry in the organization, not to the camp laundry officer by individuals."

ONE YEAR FOR DESERTER.

Private Alfonso Clark of Worcester, G Company, 443rd Reserve Labor Battalion, Q. M. C., was sentenced to one year at Fort Jay, N. Y., for desertion by a court-martial board. At the expiration of his sentence Clark will be discharged dishonorably and will forfeit all pay and allowances. He was arrested in Worcester on February 26 last, following his alleged desertion from the camp on December 12, 1918.

All prisoners in this camp will be confined hereafter in the guardhouse of the 36th Infantry. All other guard-houses will be discontinued. Prisoners ordered into confinement will be sent to the guardhouse in charge of a non-commissioned officer.

AYER FIRM CELEBRATES GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

Boston representatives of N. W. Ayer & Son, one of the oldest and largest advertising agencies in the country, are in Philadelphia today for the celebration of the golden anniversary of the founding of their firm. A distinguished assembly of prominent business, newspaper and periodical men are attending the celebration.

Malley Grateful to Press for Aid on Income Tax

Editor American:

The success of the income tax collection campaign just closed was due in a great measure to the co-operation of the newspapers of the State.

The publicity matter furnished by this office and by the field deputies in the various cities and towns received the careful and courteous attention of the editors and reporters.

We are grateful for this assistance, for the space given our publicity and for the prominent display accorded our copy.

May I not, therefore, extend to you, to your reporters and editors who so ably assisted this office my sincere thanks and the hearty appreciation of the News-Intelligence Department of the Third Collection District of Massachusetts. Very sincerely yours,

JOHN F. MALLEY,

OPEN NEW HOME OF VAUDEVILLE ARTISTS

Boston Delegation, Headed by R. D. Larsen, Entertained in New York Club House

New York, March 28.—Hundreds of vaudeville stars, prominent managers and newspaper representatives from all over the East attended the opening of the Vaudeville Artists Club house, No. 29 West Forty-sixth street.

After nearly two years of preparation and a cost of half million dollars, the club house opened its doors for the first time in honor of the press. The building was formerly the headquarters of the White Rats.

The party included Robert D. Larsen, manager of Keith's Theatre in Boston; Westley Frazier of the Keith circuit booking agency; Samuel Mahoney and John Casey, the censor. All were guests in New York of the vaudeville organization numbering more than twelve thousand members.

The Boston delegation was entertained at dinner at the New Commodore Hotel, followed by a brilliant reception and supper at the clubhouse. E. F. Albee, head of the Keith circuit, who is responsible for the entire scheme of reconstruction and decoration of the clubhouse, made a brief address of welcome.

The clubhouse has complete hotel service. Both exterior and interior are of great beauty. There is a roomy lounge just above the street level opening into a theatre and ballroom, beautifully decorated in ivory tints and old rose. The rooms are individual in color scheme, no two being alike.

SHOULD PROTECT SON-IN-LAW WHO ERRS

Isabel Irving Believes Wife's Mother Ought to Keep Knowledge to Herself

By F. J. McISAAC

What should a girl's mother do if she catches her son-in-law in mischief?

Isabel Irving, who plays the ideal mother-in-law of "She Walks in Her Sleep," thinks she should keep her mouth shut.

In the second act of "She Walks in Her Sleep," the mother-in-law enters her daughter's apartment unexpectedly and finds her son-in-law being embraced by a damsel in a pink silk nightie and a picture hat. After reproaching him for his wickedness and getting him to promise to behave in the future, she helps him conceal the damsel from her daughter, who comes in hurriedly.

HUSBAND WAS INNOCENT.

Of course it turns out that the girl in the nightie was walking in her sleep and the husband was innocent, but the mother-in-law didn't know this when she became his accomplice.

"An intelligent mother," said Miss Irving, "places her daughter's happiness above everything. Suppose the girl had discovered her husband in an apparently unexplainable situation. Her heart would be broken, her home destroyed and the divorce court would yawn for her.

"Isn't it far better to leave her in ignorance of her husband's misconduct and use her own knowledge as a club to make him walk the straight and narrow path in the future? It seems so to me. I am in hearty sympathy with the author's theory and I am delighted that he didn't create the conventional mother-in-law who would blab the whole affair and break up a perfectly comfortable home.

SHOULD NOT INTERFERE.

"I admit that there is a question whether a woman ought to live with a man who is untrue to her, but I believe it is the woman's business and not that of her mother. If more mothers-in-law would keep out of squabbles between husbands and wives the percentage of divorces would drop enormously."

Miss Irving seemed a very youthful woman to be playing a mother-in-law, but her career upon the stage is a comparatively long and honorable one. She was a member of Augustin Daly's celebrated company, left it to be leading woman with Daniel Frohman's Lyceum stock, then succeeded Maud Adams as John Drew's leading woman, and has played many fine parts in a distinguished manner. Her most recent success was with Tom Wise in "Merry Wives of Windsor," a production which did not reach Boston.

FELL IN LOVE WITH A DEAD MAN!

German Machine Gun Woman, who fought through the entire four years of the war, is captured by a Scotchman who is about to bayonet her when she proves that she is a woman. Shot by a sniper bullet, he falls dead at her feet. She lies beside his body all night and in the morning kisses him, takes his identification disk and plans to seek his relatives. A thrilling story next Sunday in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

GERMANS NOW DENY THEY SUNK THE CYCLOPS

Washington, March 28.—Naval officials resumed their task of considering the fate of the collier Cyclops following receipt, today, of word from Berlin that the Germans had not sunk the ship. German admiralty officials reported that there were no German submarines operating in the West Indies at the time of the sinking. The Cyclops disappeared together with her fifteen officers, 221 men and fifty-seven passengers, in March, a year ago, while enroute from Brazil for the United States.

BROOKLINE 1,000 DEMAND RIGHTS OF IRELAND

Mass Meeting in Town Hall Opposes Any League That Opposes Hopes of Peoples

President Wilson was urged to demand that the peace conference recognize the rights of Ireland to self-determination as it has already recognized that right in the cases of Poland, Ukrainia, Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia in a resolution adopted by 1,000 people at a meeting in the interests of Ireland at Brookline Town Hall.

Dr. Henry A. McLaughlin presided and the speakers were Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell of St. James' Church, Rev. Michael T McManus of St. Mary's Church of the Assumption, former Mayor James M. Curley of Boston and Selectman Walter J. Cusick of Brookline.

There will be no peace in Europe as long as the Irish question remains unsettled, declared Selectman Cusick. He called upon the younger Irishmen to become interested in the cause. Dr. McLaughlin pointed out the necessity of the younger men taking up the work because of the older friends of Ireland being taken away by death and emphasized the value of propaganda.

That the meeting was irrevocably opposed to any plan for a League of Nations which blasts the hopes of oppressed peoples by guaranteeing the territorial integrity of the countries which are members of the league was the sense of the resolution which set forth that the resolvers wished a just and lasting peace established, but not at the wholly unnecessary expense of American independence, or the interests or honor of this republic.

PAY RAISES IN HAVERHILL HANG FIRE

City Employes Beginning to Treat the Whole Thing as a Joke

Haverhill, March 28.—There is a feeling of unrest among the city employes here because of the failure of the city council to prepare the budget for 1919. Proposed increases, for the police, fire and street departments, and ash collectors, have not yet materialized, and those interested are beginning to treat the matter as a "joke."

Since the first of January the members of the city council have been unable to agree on the salary question. The budget should have been made up in December, but the old council allowed it to go over and now one-fourth of the year has gone and city employes are without their increases.

Alderman Roswell L. Wood, police commissioner, favored a ten per cent. increase for the members of the police department, but Mayor Croy and Alderman Hutchins voted against it. The police are now receiving $3.55 a day, and want $4.25.

127,794,000 Pounds of Meat Exported in Single Month

Washington, March 28.—Some idea of the extent to which America is feeding the world is indicated in figures made public today by the Department of Commerce, showing the exports of meat products to the allied and neutral countries during February. Fresh beef exports to the United Kingdom totalled more than 13,000,000 pounds, with a value of more than $3,111,000. Of the total exports of 114,794,000 pounds of bacon during the month, Belgium took 11,500,000 pounds; France, 38,982,000 pounds; United Kingdom, 42,576,000 pounds; Italy, 15,467,000 pounds; Norway, 4,000,000 pounds, with various other countries taking the remainder.

HELLER CAUGHT AFTER CHASE TO MONTREAL

Bogus Doctor Brought Here to Face Robbery Charge

Montreal, March 28.—After a four months' chase, which led from Boston to New York and thence to Montreal, Boston detectives have left with James Heller, who is wanted in Boston charged with robbery and with passing as a doctor.

In November last Heller is alleged to have robbed David Monvitz of No. 594 Main street, Lowell, who is over ninety years old. He is said to have persuaded the aged man that he was a doctor. Monvitz accompanied the man to an "office" in a back room, where the old man was robbed of $400.

A similar incident occurred in Montreal a few weeks ago, when Heller is alleged to have robbed a woman of $600 when called in as a doctor.

DRYS LOSE FIGHT ON CHRISTENING OF SHIP

Champagne to Be Used at Launching of the Worcester Tomorrow

Worcester, March 28.—Despite the protest of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, a quart bottle of champagne will be used at the christening of this city's "$19,000,000" Liberty ship Worcester at her launching in Groton, Ct., tomorrow.

Both Mayor Holems and the shipbuilding company refused to accede to the request of the prohibitionists.

Mrs. Homer Gage, wife of the Worcester doctor now with a British medical unit, will christen the vessel in the presence of a party of more than 1,000 Worcester people who will travel in special train to Groton for the launching.

The vessel, which is all-steel, with a displacement of 12,000 tons, was built by the Groton Shipbuilding Company for the Shipping Board. It is to be named Worcester by the board in honor of the city's oversubscription of $4,000,000 of its $15,000,000 quota in the Fourth Liberty Loan. The ship's bell is a gift of the city from a public subscription to a fund of $240. Mrs. Pehr G. Holmes, wife of the Mayor, was to have christened the vessel but has withdrawn from the ceremony because of illness.

ARMY FLIERS MAY JOIN AIR RACE CROSS-SEAS

Land Pilots Well Equipped to Win First Honors in Venture

By JOHN K. GOWEN, JR.,
Reserve Military Aviator.

Rumor is always whispering something, and now it is whispering that the Army Air Service may be represented in the first transatlantic air race.

But the Army Air Service entry, if indeed there is to be one, will be secret, according to mysterious whispers. No announcement will be made to the public until a successful crossing has been made.

And the public is further informed that it would have known nothing about the navy plans had it not been for a slip at Washington.

ARMY FLIERS EFFICIENT.

There is no sound reason why army airmen should not be given the same chance to win honors in this race that is to be accorded naval fliers. There are just as good pilots and navigators in the Army as there are in the Navy — and Army men, naturally, will claim there are better.

The ocean air race has resolved itself into an international affair, with the United States and Great Britain as the chief entrants. The British public is being taken into official confidence, and no secret is being made of British plans, even those which involve private enterprise.

The American public has the same right to complete information. Inside and outside aeronautical circles there is the greatest and most general interest in this race because of what it will mean to future generations.

Only sportsmen are interested in the monetary prizes, which are considerable, and which it is believed, will go to private interests if they make the crossing first, and not to airmen in government service. From the sporting standpoint the transatlantic air race surpasses by far any other international event, not even the international yacht races being barred.

FIRST TRIP WILL SHOW FLAWS.

Successful culmination of the first transatlantic flight will open new possibilities in passenger carrying and commerce. It will show whether the heavier-than-air machine, or the dirigible is practical in its present stage of development to carry out such an undertaking.

If transatlantic airplane lines are established as a result of this first race it will mean that not hours but days will be saved in the transportation of passengers and mails.

And if the first attempts are not successful they will at least show where the trouble lies and aeronautical engineers, strengthened by practical experience, will correct possible defects.

SHIPS GIVE PUBLICITY.

When the Air Service was vindicating its existence, shortly after the armistice was signed it sent many parties of expert pilots about the country for the purpose of showing the tax payers just what the Air Service had done with their millions. Each formation had a "publicity ship," and from some fields these ships were covered with lettering telling just what the Air Service had accomplished.

No better proof of well-trained pilots and superships could be given by the Army Air Service than to send an army plane from Newfoundland to Ireland. But the trip will lose half its significance if the public is not given full advance information as well as later intelligence.

FUNDS OF STRIKERS NEARLY EXHAUSTED

Biddeford, Me., March 28.—Although the conference between the loomfixers and agents of the Pepperell Manufacturing Company here and the Yorke Manufacturing Company at Saco, resulted in no definite understanding, the opinion prevailing is that the lockout that has existed for more than eight weeks will be brought to an end shortly, owing to a lack of funds on the part of the operatives.

N. H. ENACTS LAW AGAINST RED RULE

Concord, N. H., March 28.—The State Legislature has passed an act "to prevent the overthrow of governments by force," which forbids holding of meetings or the organization of associations for the purpose of attempting to change the government "by force or unlawful means in the United States or in this State."

For circulation of literature or pictures of a revolutionary character a penalty of not more than $5,000 fine or not more than two years' imprisonment, or both, is provided.

The meeting was held in William M. Olin hall in Roxbury, the gathering place of the veterans, and when President James F. Flynn put up the question to be balloted upon, the answering vote was unanimous.

The veterans are boosting the petition because they know what it is to come home from war and be without money and work, and they sympathize with the returning soldiers and sailors who find themselves in that predicament.

CONTINUE WRIT IN SCIENCE DISPUTE

Respondents Given Until April 4, When Master Will Then Be Appointed

Legal action to determine which of two trusts are to have control of the business and publications of the Christian Science Publishing Company was begun in the Supreme Court today before Judge Braley on an order of notice to show cause why a temporary injunction previously issued by the trustees against the directors of the Mother Church should not be continued pending a hearing on the legal questions involved.

The action grows out of an attempt on the part of the directors of the church to oust Lamont Rowlands of Picayune, Miss., one of the three trustees. The other trustees who are complainants, Herbert W. Eustace of Boston and David G. Ogden of Brookline, declare that the directors seek control of the business and publications of the company and have restrained them from doing so through an injunction.

INJUNCTION STANDS.

The trustees claim authority to act under a deed of trust created in 1899 by Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder of Christian Science.

Judge Braley today ordered the injunction continued and the pleadings to be [illegible] before a master to be agreed upon by counsel for both sides. If they fail to agree on or before April 4 Judge Braley will appoint a master. Pleadings are to be completed on or before the above date if the master is selected by counsel.

Ex-Governor John L. Bates, who represents the defendants except John V. Dittemore, called the attention of the court to the fact that three days after the bill in equity was filed by Herbert E. Eustace and others thousands of copies of the bill were sent to members of the church for the purpose, he alleged, of creating sentiment in favor of the complainants. He suggested that the injunction might be terminated in view of this action.

LOYAL TO FOUNDER.

Sherman L. Whipple, who represents all the complainants, declared that as the respondents had not filed an answer, it would be difficult to say how many facts are in dispute.

William G. Thompson appeared for John V. Dittemore and said that though his client had been illegally removed as a director of the church he would not be a party to any action because of his loyalty to the church and its founder.

MAYOR'S ANNEXATION PLAN WINS IN DEBATE

The withdrawal of Mayor Peters' annexation bill was premature. Winthrop High team took the affirmative and Quincy the negative. The judges were Principal Herman Gammons of Chelsea High School, Frank P. Morse of Revere High School and Principal Percy Campbell of Cambridge Latin School.

GOVERNOR SAYS MAINE LAGS IN ALCOHOL LAW

Milliken Asks Reconsideration of Bill to Cut 3 Per Cent. Standard

Augusta, Me. March 28.—Governor Milliken sent a special message to the Legislature today urging reconsideration of its refusal to pass the bill to lower the three per cent. alcohol standard.

The Governor urged the necessity of Maine defining intoxicating liquor so as to harmonize with that of other States and of the Federal government.

He warned against Maine, regarded as a leader in temperance reform stumbling into "unenviable notoriety."

The present law allows sale of beverages containing up to three per cent of alcohol. The bill turned down by the Legislature would reduce this to one-half of one per cent, the Federal standard. In his special message, Governor Milliken said in part:

"At the very time that the victory of national prohibition is being celebrated and Maine is rightly hailed as a pioneer in this great human welfare movement, we are in danger of stumbling into a pitfall which will bring us into unenviable notoriety throughout the country.

"For lack of a precise definition regarding the percentage of alcohol in non-malt alcoholic beverages our courts have held the question whether such a beverage was intoxicating to be in such instance a question of fact. In the case of non-malt liquors containing less than 3 per cent. of alcohol, proof of actual intoxication has been required in order to show the beverage to be intoxicating liquor. In practice such evidence is always extremely difficult to secure.

"So far as I know, Maine is now the only dry State which permits the sale of beverages containing so large a percentage of alcohol. New Hampshire Legislature has just refused to legalize the sale of beer containing as much as 2¾ per cent. of alcohol."

R. I. OFFICIALS TO ASK ROOSEVELT FOR BOAT

Providence, March 28.—Rhode Island wants to greet the members of the 26th Division in regular form and has asked Assistant Secretary Roosevelt for a government boat. Already a State party is formed and members of both branches of the General Assembly will be appointed a committee to make final arrangements. Governor Beeckman said:

"The mere standing on a wharf and greeting our boys does not seem to me to be proper recognition and I believe Secretary Roosevelt will allow one of the government boats for the Rhode Island party. Our idea would be to offer the Massachusetts committee a share of the opportunity we seek. The farther out to sea we greet them, the greater welcome they will know is in store for them."

MEDFORD MAKES FINAL PLANS FOR WELCOME

Final arrangements for the reception by Medford to the returning boys of the 26th will be made at a meeting of the general committee called for Sunday afternoon at the Medford Armory. It is proposed to erect a $5,000 memorial on the High School lawn, to have a parade, banquet and other entertainment for the boys on their return and to present every soldier from the city with a medal.

BOSTON SON-IN-LAW DENIES SURPRISE IN PAGE WILL

Mrs. Charles Garfield Loring (Katherine Alice Page), daughter of late American Ambassador to Court of St. James, and wife of Boston architect.

Boston friends of Mrs. Charles Garfield Loring, formerly Katherine Alice Page, were surprised to learn today that she and her three brothers had not been named as beneficiaries in the will of their father Walter Hines Page, formerly American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, and who died last December.

The will of the late ambassador who because of illness was forced to resign his diplomatic position in London, was filed in Mineola, L. I. "disposes of personal property in excess of $10,000," but it is understood that Mr. Page's holdings were greatly in excess of this amount both in New York and other States.

Charles Garfield Loring, Boston architect, who married Miss Page at the Chapel Royal of St. James' Palace, today said there was nothing "queer" in the disposition of his late father-in-law's estate. He said the ambassador had left his entire estate to his widow not so much because the ambassador considered that his three sons and daughter were well provided for as because he believed that the proper and customary thing to do was to will his entire estate to his widow.

Mrs. Loring is at present at Pinehurst, N. C., with her mother. Ralph Page, the eldest son, owns a peach orchard there and Arthur Page, who has just returned from France, also is staying at Pinehurst. Major Frank Page, the second son, is in business in New York.

"There is nothing at all odd or unusual in Mr. Page's will," declared Mr. Loring. "The family knew a long time ago what disposition Mr. Page would make of his estate. Personally I have not seen the document, but I do know that there is nothing unusual in it."

GIRLS ESCAPE AUTO 'CADS' ON LONELY ROAD

Forced to Flee in Defence of Honor, Are Arrested as "Vagrants"

When will girls learn to refuse strangers who ask them to enjoy an automobile ride?

Many cases have occurred recently of girls being forced to leave autos in lonely places in dead of night to protect themselves.

The latest is of two Northboro girls who appeared in Clinton court on charges of vagrancy after they had been arrested for spending the night in a cabin beside the New Haven railroad tracks.

The two bedraggled and weeping maidens told Judge Smith in the Clinton District Court a pitiful story of abandonment on a country highway because they resented the advances of their "gentlemen friends." The girls were Catherine and Mary Foster of Northboro.

There has been an epidemic of this sort of "caveman stuff" in that section of the State, in spite of which young rakes with plenty of money and high-powered cars have no trouble in getting fair passengers. Both girls cried bitterly in court and said that two young men from Worcester, whom they knew, had invited them to go riding and then had become objectionable. The girls were ejected from the machine in the early morning hours, stripped of their hats and coats and left by the roadside while their "friends," jeering and catcalling, rode away.

The terrorized girls sought shelter in the cabin for the night and in the morning attempted to get breakfast and their return fare home when they were arrested.

In court they were not only discharged but a purse was made up to take them to their home.

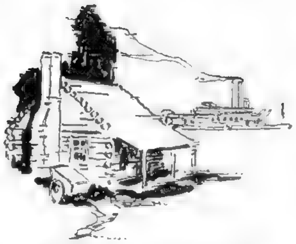
Here, in Colonel Higbee's old Southern plantation home, Aunt Jemima served her celebrated pancakes to the colonel and his guests

The old plantation cook who made a fortune

How a Louisiana mammy made pancakes so good they became America's favorite breakfast



In this cabin, close to the bank of the Mississippi, Aunt Jemima lived for years after the war had freed her. Many were the meals of delicious hot pancakes she served here to the people who came from miles around to get them

Sixty years ago an old negro cook became famous throughout the whole South for her pancakes.

Her name was Aunt Jemima and all the guests at Colonel Higbee's plantation in Louisiana, where Aunt Jemima was cook, said they had never tasted such cakes before. They came from miles around to get them!

After the war had freed her, Aunt Jemima lived for years in her little cabin close to the Mississippi. Many were the delicious pancakes she served here to those who came from all over the South for a taste of them.

How their fame reached the North

The famous old river steamer, the "Robert E. Lee," stopped regularly for wood near Aunt Jemima's cabin.

One day there was a Southerner on board, who as a guest of Colonel Higbee's had often eaten Aunt Jemima's Pancakes. He invited his fellow passengers, among whom were many Northerners, to stop at Aunt Jemima's cabin for a plate of her delicious cakes

This they did, and so the fame of Aunt Jemima's Pancakes reached the North.

Among the party was a member of the firm which is now known as the Aunt Jemima Mills Company. He, with many of the others, made Aunt Jemima tempting offers for her recipe, but she could not be induced to part with it.

After months of effort, however, and offers more and more liberal, Aunt Jemima finally consented to sell us her celebrated recipe. One condition of the sale was that she was to be paid in gold, for after several unfortunate experiences with paper money during the war, she was fully convinced that gold was the only safe form of wealth. Thus Aunt Jemima made her fortune from the sale of her pancake recipe.

The recipe prepared for your use

Now came the real work of getting this wonderful recipe into the homes of all the women in the land-months of study and experiment, with Aunt Jemima herself supervising every step. At last Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour in its present form was evolved. Even the sweet milk, so necessary for good pancakes, was reduced to powdered form and put into the flour.

And now any one can make these famous cakes! For Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour contains all the ingredients of the old secret recipe.

You need no milk—no eggs

You need only stir up Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour with a little water. The pure sweet milk, remember, is already in the flour, and it's so rich you need no eggs. With it, you, too, can serve the tender, delicious cakes that were praised so highly by all the guests on that old Louisiana plantation!

Have an Aunt Jemima Pancake breakfast tomorrow—fragrant, deliciously browned pancakes, piping hot! See why they have become America's favorite breakfast.

Order a package today.

Many tempting offers were made Aunt Jemima for her wonderful recipe but none so tempting as the offer of the company which is now the Aunt Jemima Mills Company, to whom she finally sold her famous recipe

With Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour you can also make the most delightful muffins, waffles and breadsticks you ever ate! Aunt Jemima Flour comes prepared for buckwheat cakes, too Aunt Jemima Mills Company, St. Joseph, Missouri

Now-a-days anyone can serve these same wonderful cakes—Aunt Jemima's secret recipe can be your very own. And you can make her pancakes in a quarter of the time it took Aunt Jemima!

"No More Sleepless Nights"—Bathes Internally

Mr. J. B. Burrows, 271 West North st., Decatur, Ill., writes Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute of New York as follows:

"I am still using the 'J. B. L. Cascade' once a week and find it most efficient for keeping me in fine condition. It acts as a sedative for tired nerves and has been a great help for sleeplessness. I have frequently arisen from bed and used it in the middle of the night with satisfactory results."

The reason for this remarkable result is, as always, the functions cannot work properly when there is an accumulation of waste in the lower intestine.

The "J. B. L. Cascade," by the simple process of properly applying warm water, eliminates all this waste and causes the functions to work smoothly and properly.

Over half a million intelligent Americans are now using the Cascade with similar results.

It is the invention of Chas. A. Tyrrell, M. D., of New York, a noted specialist in internal bathing for 25 years.

It will be shown and explained to you by all Liggett Riker-Jaynes Stores in New England, who will be glad to give you an interesting booklet by Dr. Tyrrell called "Why Man of To-Day Is Only 50% Efficient." This booklet is free upon request. Ask for it today while you think of it.—Advertisement.

CASH PRIZES FOR BOYS' ADVICE TO FATHERS

Papa Gets It Straight in Prose and Verse in City Club Contest

How would you like to be the father of a son who gets paid for giving you good advice, and who lays down rules as to how you should conduct yourself toward him in particular and everybody else in general?

William Trahern Miller, eighteen years old, and Charles A. Palmer, Jr., seventeen, have just been awarded five dollar gold pieces "for telling the old man how to behave."

The fathers of the two boys are members of the City Club and a fortnight ago President George B. Smith of the club offered two prizes to sons of members for the best essay or poem on "Advice to Fathers." The names of the prize-winners have just been announced, young Miller taking the five dollar gold piece for the best essay and young Palmer for the best poem.

"Charlie" Palmer is the son of Charles A. Palmer, manager of the Eastern Clay Products Company, with offices in the Tremont Building. Besides being a member of the City Club he is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and the Rotary Club. William Theodore ("Teddy") Palmer, eleven years old, another son, also entered the competition and was highly commended. The Palmer parent gives credit for his sons' literary taste to their mother, who was class poet in the High School at Syracuse, N. Y., in 1895, in which class Mr. Palmer also was graduated. The Palmers live at No. 67 Wollaston avenue, Arlington Heights.

IN THE WAR FLYING SERVICE.

William Trahern Miller, who took the prize for the best essay, lives at No. 163 Commonwealth avenue, Chestnut Hill. He is the son of Albert E. Miller and prepared for college at the Tilton Seminary, later going to "Tech" and entering the aviation service. He was born in Philadelphia but has spent the greater part of his life in Massachusetts.

Here is the way young Miller says fathers should act towards sons:

"We are glad of this opportunity to speak to you on several matters which we have felt for quite a while you needed enlightening on.

"First. To be a regular father you must appreciate your son. This is the least you can do, as you will never understand him. This appreciation may best be shown in a dignified financial way. By dignified we mean no questions asked.

"Remember that your son has many more problems facing him than you had when you were a boy. Do you realize, father, what a busy place this world is? And how hard it is to get along? Within the last decade the cost of loving has greatly increased, and the school system is much harder to beat than when you were a boy. Then in your day you weren't confronted with traffice police who are most unreasonable in their attitude.

"Upon many occasions you refuse to listen to reason, and cut us off quite rudely in an argument. Now, that isn't fair. Just think how poor your education is as compared with your sons. Why, you've admitted it; you've often said you only wish you'd had our advantages of education when you were a boy. How can you pretend knowledge of the many subjects of which your son is the complete master when you have been out of school so many years?

SPEAKING OF GIRLS.

"Of course school reports are no test of our boy's knowledge or ability. He gets low marks on purpose to [illegible] dis[illegible] for the teachers and the system. He is really a [illegible] as yet unrecognized by a slow world.

"On this matter of girls. We may as well disillusion you at once. You're way off when you try to advise us. Why the chickens of today have it all over the girls you used to go with. They wore funny looking clothes, sang songs that didn't have any jazz, and could only waltz and two-step. Besides: We've often heard you speak of Lillian Russell and when we saw her the other day she impressed us as making a fine wife for a Governor, but she isn't in with Mary Pickford.

"You see we've had a lot of experience in these things and we know. Of course we appreciate all that you do for us, and any time you need our help we'll be only too glad to give it. And we are sorry for you, in a way, for of course it isn't your fault that you have these ideas. All they need is changing.

"Then we realize that you have to be careful because of mother, and here let me say that we give you credit for being quite diplomatic in the way in which you handle many situations that arise with her. Perhaps I'd better not say much about this.

"Well, with all our effort we can plainly see that you are not showing interest. You do not seem to understand, although some day you will. In the meantime all we ask of you is a square deal. Give us what we want when we want it, and please don't ask embarrassing questions.

"On the whole we are good sons to you. Why, just think how much worse we could be, and when you wake to this fact, as you will surely some day, you will be sorry that you ever raised a howl over such a petty thing as a summons for speeding or a low school record."

SOME ADVICE IN VERSE.

Charles A. Palmer, Jr.'s prize poem follows:

By CHARLES A. PALMER, JR.

Say, Pa, it's not so long ago
You had me on your knee
And you were singing kid songs
Or baby talk to me.

But look here, Dad, I'm growing up
In every single line(?)
So don't you think I'm old enough
To chum around with you?

I've had my long pants quite a while,
I've got the Stetson lid,
So I want to ask you just one thing
Don't treat me like a kid.

Down underneath, you're fine, the way
My Dad will always be.
But won't you please just loosen up
And be a pal with me?

PAPA NOW A CONVERT.

"I'll have to turn over a new leaf," said Papa Palmer when he heard the essay of his eleven year old son read before 300 members of the City Club.

"Teddy" Palmer, while laying down rules and regulations for his sire to follow, [illegible] of a baseball bat while he wrote [illegible] follows:

"I believe that fathers should come out and play a game of [illegible] with their boys and play [illegible] with them [illegible] for the rest of the day. This would [illegible] have a better influence over their boys.

"Another thing which fathers should do is to spend as much time as possible in their homes. They should have no bad habits, unless they want their sons to follow them. They should be just the kind of men they want their boys to be when they grow up. They should take care of their health and if they have any bad habits they should try to stop them.

Mr. Palmer said he was very much in accord with his sons' views.

More morphine is sold in the streets of Boston today and there are countless more addicts to this dread drug than there were when the narcotic was sold over the counter without [illegible], according to Welsh.

Thousands of ounces of morphine are being smuggled in from England through seamen stopping at Atlantic ports and it is here where the greatest morphine kings of the East are getting their supply of "dope," the officer declared.

"It is also the cause of the great number of deaths from morphine," said Welsh. "English morphine when brought into this country is six times stronger than the American manufactured morphine. Many persons get the undiluted English morphine and by taking the same dose they usually take of the American manufactured drug death is the result.

"When the drug arrives in this country it is usually diluted with sugar and milk until it is reduced to one-sixth of its normal strength," Welsh said.

Enormous profits are being made daily by the morphine kings, who make more than $[illegible] on every ten-ounce box of morphine brought into this country, even if they pay the exorbitant price of $[illegible] an ounce which [illegible] of the smugglers demand. According to [illegible] morphine is sold on the street for $50 an ounce [illegible] but [illegible] more [illegible]

Are You Losing Your Grip on Health?

Physician's Prescription to Increase the Health and Strength of Anaemic, Run-down Men and Women

As a result of the tremendous strain which the war has put upon so many people the nerve centers have become devitalized, the whole system weakened, and thousands of men and women are today losing their grip on health simply because their blood is thinning out and possibly starving through lack of iron. It is through iron in the red coloring matter of the blood that life-sustaining oxygen enters the body and enables the blood to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. If people would only keep their blood filled with strength-giving iron by taking Nuxated Iron when they feel weak and run-down they might readily build up their red blood corpuscles and quickly become stronger and healthier in every way. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: [illegible] how long you can work or how far you can walk without [illegible] Nuxated Iron [illegible] Then test your strength [illegible] Nuxated Iron will increase the strength [illegible] time in many cases. TO KEEP DOWN LABOR UNREST IN BRITAIN

National Industrial Conference Expected to Find a Solution to Problem

By FLOYD MacGRIFF

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, March 28.—It is regarded as certain that some permanent organization [illegible] ... British industries [illegible] ... problem of the unrest.

The conference will reassemble April 4 to hear the reports of the committees appointed by the commission of sixty, half of which are [illegible]. These reports will deal with phases of the [illegible] situation as it affects the employe and the employer. Premier Lloyd George is expected to be present when these reports are read [illegible].

[illegible] into the question of wages and hours [illegible] ... may be made.

Recommendations also will be laid before the conference [illegible] to prevent [illegible] when it does arise [illegible].

As regards future disputes, it is likely that the commission of sixty will recommend the establishment of a permanent national body to deal with industrial problems, so that causes which have led to strikes in the past can be investigated and settled so that they cannot develop into disputes [illegible] future.

This national body would have subcommittees to deal with the various branches of industry, promoting a better feeling and greater co-operation between labor and capital.

In reference to increased production some plan is expected to be brought forward whereby the workers will share in excess profits due to increased output.

SMALL PACKERS TO JOIN IN GIGANTIC COMBINE

Buffalo, N. Y., March 28.—Buffalo may become the headquarters of the largest independent packing corporation in the world if plans already under way [illegible] as proposed. The first step was taken when William A. Morgan, one of Buffalo's leading packers, who was connected with Swift & Co. for several years, announced that New York capitalists had acquired control of the Klinck Packing Company, which does a business of $10,000,000 a year. Options have been taken on practically all of the so-called smaller packing companies in the principal cities of the country, and details in connection with the combination will be announced [illegible].

SERGEANT ASKS RETURN TO FORCE

Leather, Vindicated in Superior Court, Seeks Reinstatement as Fall River Officer

Fall River, March 28.—Former Police Sergeant Richard Leather, who resigned from the force rather than subject himself and family to an open hearing on charges, and who was completely vindicated when the case came into the Superior Court, now asks the police board to reinstate him on the force.

Leather is [illegible] concerned [illegible] of his children. He says:

"Not that I care so much for a job, for no doubt I can get another just as good, but I have five children. None better exist. It stirs me that they have to live down even idle rumors which, in many instances, I fear, have been unintentionally nursed along by those who ought to know better."

In regard to his request to the police board Leather adds:

"If the police board or any established authority will question me on minutest details they can have my life if I fail to satisfy on every point. I didn't squeal when everything seemed against me. Now that I am acquitted I think the board should accept this proposition."

As police sergeant, with a splendid twelve year record for faithful and efficient service, Sergeant Leather was involved in charges which originated in the talk of a sailor who thought he had a grievance against Leather.

The police board called for an open hearing or resignation. Sergeant Leather asked on account of his family for a closed hearing. Failing this, Leather resigned, foolishly, as he now says. His acquittal in court vindicated him in the end.

"UNCLE JOE" CANNON, 87, STILL HAS HIS TROUBLES

Danville, Ill., March 28.—Despite his eighty-seven years of active life "Uncle Joe" Cannon still has his little trials and tribulations. Traveling from this city to his old home at Tuscola with a bag containing a nightshirt and a handful of black cigars he found on arriving at his destination he had "swapped" valises with a mail clerk. Opening it in a hotel room he discovered he had a perfectly good postal clerk's map of the United States to wrap himself in for a night and a quantity of books and postal schemes for a pillow.

BILL NOLAN OUT TO WIN FROM GENE HUSSEY

The Boston District High School meet completes the indoor season. The standing broad and high jump events were to be decided this afternoon in the drill hall of English High School.

The big number was the contest between Bill Nolan of East Boston High and Gene Hussey of Hyde Park High, in the broad jump. So far this season Hussey has had it "on" the Noddle Island Boy, and the latter was hopeful of cleaning up.

The shotput event was to be held in the Normal School gymnasium. There was to be plenty of competition with George McCluskey, the husky from Brighton High, favored to win.

The semi finals and finals in the running events will be decided tomorrow afternoon in the East Armory. East Boston High and Hyde Park High are picked to have it out for the point trophy.

The junior events for East Boston High will be taken care of by Katz, Cohen and Taylor.

HOOPER IN TOGS FIRST DAY OUT AT TAMPA

By JACK CONWAY.

Tampa, Fla., March 28.—Battering Babe Ruth has disowned the Red Sox Yannigans before that outfit has had the opportunity to gaze upon any Florida orange blossoms.

He served notice on Manager Barrow that he will only play on the Regulars in the practice games which are soon to start.

It isn't because the Colossus has anything in particular against the Yannigans. The incident was caused by the arrival of Harry Hooper, brilliant outfielder, from his ranch in Sacramento Valley, California.

Babe has always marveled at Harry's feats of fielding. He also believes that if the Californian ever played an outfield where he was not bothered by such a little thing as a fence no ball hit in the air would ever get away from him.

As the fence at the Plant Field is situated a couple of miles from the baseball diamond [illegible] Harry and [illegible] decided that if [illegible] going to get any base hits in the practice [illegible] he must get a place with the [illegible] with Hooper.

HOOPER DOWN AT WEIGHT.

He is engaged in his first practice. After tossing the ball around for a short period, he took his turn at the bat after which he engaged in some fielding practice.

"I'm glad every American League club hasn't got a Hooper," remarked Ruth as he sent a terrific drive to right field which Harry captured after a hard sprint.

Hooper asserts that he is lighter today than he has been so early in the campaign at any time during the past five years. He has a ruddy tan and is as hard as nails.

The Fall and Winter were busy seasons for Hooper. He directed the work at his $[illegible]000 ranch, where he has made a specialty of oranges and peaches.

When Barrow's outfield "ace" announced last Winter that he did not intend to play ball this year it was because he believed that his ranch required his attention and not because he was a hold-out.

GAINER KILLING SPHERE.

Amos Strunk will perform in centre field again this year. He has been working hard and expects to have a big year.

Frank Gilhooley and Del Gainer are the candidates for the job of caring for left field. Just now it looks as though Gilhooley will oppose right-handed pitchers, as he bats from the port side, while Gainer will perform when southpaws are working for the opposition.

At that, Gilhooley will have to step lively if he is to prevent Gainer from playing regularly. Del has been hitting the ball harder than any of the Red Sox players this Spring.

Even Ruth has been forced to bow to the long distance batting efforts of the former Cub. The Red Sox need all the batting strength they can muster and, if Gainer continues to refuse to declare a batting armistice, he may be the regular left fielder at the start of the season.

Gainer says he finds it much easier to throw a ball to the plate from the outfield than to snap it around the infield.

De Oro Leading Copulos

Detroit, March 28.—Alfredo De Oro, world's champion three-cushion billiardist, is leading Gus Copulos, challenger, at the end of the first block of their 150-point match. The score: 50-34.

TWO AND THREE
PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER WITH "BUGS" BAER.

A DEFENCE OF LEFTHANDERS

THE wicked take it on the loop when no man pursueth. And when we defend the forkhander, you might want to know who accused us.

But south mitters have been accused of fluttering under the derby ever since Noah vised the first two lefthanders' passports and showed 'em into the squirrel department.

Poor old Rube Waddell led the most corrugated career ever established by a big leaguer. He was lefthanded two ways from the collar button. Vean Gregg and a thousand other left-handed accomplices have had to flatwheel along, lefthanded strangers in a righthanded land. The only consolation we have is that the Kaiser was not a sidewinder. His left paddlewheel is curled up drier than a California currant.

* * *

BESIDES being a wronghander, we were born in Philadelphia, which is compounding a felony. What chance has a southpawed kid got? He's all wrong like a two-foot yardstick. The nurse bangs him on the skull with the milk bottle in self-defence and the poor sap has to have his hats made in a kite factory for the rest of his career. All the revolving doors are hung against the grain for southpaws. All the one-armed lunches are built for righthanders.

If a bank is robbed anywhere north of the equator the bulls immediately search their left-handed thumbprints and look for a cuckoo with his left elbow all calloused from leaning on a free lunch counter.

There aren't enough leftmitters in the works to organize a Leftshevikt, but that isn't any reason why they shouldn't be entitled to suffrage. The Constitution chirps that all men are born free and unequal, and doesn't mean a thing about lefthanders not getting any more vote than a rabbit.

* * *

IF you go looking up the dope sheets you will find that southpaws have always been where trouble was the thickest, and there has always been trouble where southpaws were the thickest.

Southpaws get the first honorable mention in the Greatest Book of All. Righthanders never get a tumble. In the Book of Judges, we find the first forkmitter to break into the scoring column is Ehud. He was a lefthander and a mighty man of valor.

Eglon was King of the Moab about the time that Ehud was south pawing his way around and Eglon was about as popular as a roach in the butter. So Ehud leftboots his way into the royal garage and stuck a left handed sword into the King's dinner. This annoyed Eglon, as he had only ate the dinner five minutes before.

Ehud got steamed up to a million and forgot the sword as easy as a righthanded guy would forget an umbrella. Eglon was so fat that the sword went out of sight and nobody has seen it since.

* * *

LEFT-HANDERS get two press notices in the Book of Judges, while right handers draw blanks. The next time they crash into the hit column was when Benjamin gets in bad with the home folks. They rattle up to take Bennie's park like Grant took Richmond, but in a few years' less time.

N. E. League Revived; Heinie Wagner Gets Portland Club

Lawrence, March 28.—At a meeting of the New England baseball League, held at the Franklin House, the Lawrence club was taken over by John E. [illegible] and Charles H. Morgan, both of this city.

[illegible] Puckett and Jack Connor of Worcester secured the Haverhill franchise, Portland goes to Heinie Wagner, formerly of the Red Sox, Fitchburg to Jack Kernan of [illegible], Lowell to Dick [illegible] and Lewiston to John J. [illegible] of Portland.

Marty Shea Goes on Job as Coach of Harvard Cubs

Marty Shay, big leaguer and a former member of last season's Boston Navy Yard nine, is Harvard's freshman baseball coach.

Shay, after serving under both Joe Tinker and Fred Mitchell on the Chicago Cubs, went to the St. Joseph (Western League) club in a trade and captained the team the latter part of 191[illegible]

Baseball News

Big Ed Walsh, as good a right-hander as the game owned in his old White Sox days, and who left the big arena via the Braves, is to try a come-back. Clarence Rowland has signed him for his Milwaukee Brewers.

Jack Quinn looks immense—he weighs 210—to Miller Huggins down at the Yankees camp. The old boy delivered [illegible] when he stowed [illegible] at Fenway Park last Fall and is said to have all his old stuff this Spring.

Miller Huggins is likewise sweet on George Halas, the left-handed hitsmith he plucked from the Great Lake Station.

CODY GOING FAST AND LOOKS GOOD TO GILDEA

Coach Gildea of Boston College planned making the first cut in his squad today. He has upwards of fifty candidates [illegible] for positions and naturally [illegible] at least [illegible]. John Cody, who formerly played with Lynn [illegible] the [illegible] years good to [illegible] and stands an excellent chance [illegible] the [illegible] second [illegible].

The [illegible] an unknown [illegible] better every day. Boston College opens its season at West Point April 8.

YANKEES

Jacksonville, Fla.—The Yankees were [illegible] their fourth hard [illegible] Miller Huggins. With Ernie Shore in the fold, Frank Baker to report later and hope prevailing that Dutch Leonard will capitulate within a few days, the Yankee pilot is centering his attention on the daily workouts. Huggins is pleasantly surprised over the ginger and aggressiveness shown by Derrill Pratt, who was thought to be slipping last season.

THE DARK STAR

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

THRILLING ROMANCE OF AN AMERICAN GIRL

One of the Newest and Best Novels of Intrigue, Love and War From This Famous Author's Pen, Full of Vivid Human Interest

Synopsis of the Story So Far

Rubannah Carew, born in Trebizond, daughter of an American missionary, Reverend Wilbour Carew, accompanies her parents to their old home in Gayfield, New York State, after the father had been crippled by a Mohammedan fanatic. Her favorite amusement is playing with the wonder box of the late Herr Conrad Wilner, a few pages of whose diary are always read by her father or mother to her as a bedtime story. The box contains treasures with which Rue plays and finds absorbing interest. She learns from the diary that Wilner saw the box being dropped from a yacht in the Bosphorus and fished it up with the body of a beautiful girl sewn in a sack.

Wilner, as an agent of the German government, makes plans for fortifying Gallipoli. The duplicates of these are stolen and he gets evidence that the Turks seek his life. He gives the box to Rev. Mr. Carew for safe keeping, with instructions to send the plans to Berlin in case he is killed. He is stoned to death, but Mr. Carew keeps the papers. Rue, as she grows up, longs to be an artist, but the family has only a pension and it is decided she must go to work. She meets Dick Neeland, who had known her as a child and who is now an artist. He dances with her and tells her of his success. She dreams of making a name for herself.

CHAPTER VI.

The End of Solitude

Copyright, 1917, by Robert W. Chambers.

A RAIN-WASHED world, smelling sweet as a wet rose, a cloudless sky delicately blue, and a swollen stream tumbling and foaming under the bridge—of these Mr. Eddie Brandes was agreeably conscious as he stepped out on the veranda after breakfast, and, unclasping a large gold cigar case, inserted a cigar between his teeth.

He always had the appearance of having just come out of a Broadway barber shop with the visible traces of shave, shampoo, massage and manicure patent upon his person.

His short, square figure was clothed in well-cut blue serge; a smart straw hat embellished his head, polished russet shoes his remarkably small feet. On his small fat fingers several heavy rings were conspicuous. And the odor of cologne exhaled from and subtly pervaded the ensemble.

Across the road, hub-deep in wet grass and weeds, he could see his wrecked runabout, glistening with raindrops.

He stood for a while on the veranda, both hands shoved deep into his pockets, his cigar screwed into his cheek. From time to time he jingled keys and loose coins in his pockets. Finally he sauntered down the steps and across the wet road to inspect the machine at closer view.

Contemplating it tranquilly, head on one side and half an eye closed to avoid the drifting cigar smoke, he presently became aware of a girl in a pink print dress leaning over the gray parapet of the bridge. And, picking his way among the puddles, he went toward her.

"Good morning, Miss Carew," he said, taking off his straw hat.

She turned her head over her shoulder; the early sun glistened on his shiny, carefully parted hair and lingered in glory on a diamond scarf pin.

"Good morning," she said, a little uncertainly, for the memory of their first meeting on the bridge had not entirely been forgotten.

"You had breafast early," he said.

"Yes."

He kept his hat off; such little courtesies have their effect; also it was good for his hair which, he feared, had become a trifle thinner recently.

"It is beautiful weather," said Mr. Brandes, squinting at her through his cigar smoke.

"Yes." She looked down into the tumbling water.

"This is a beautiful country, isn't it, Miss Carew?"

"Yes."

With his head a little to one side he inspected her. There was only the fine curve of her cheek visible and a white neck under the chestnut hair; and one slim, tanned hand resting on the stone parapet.

"Do you like motoring?" he asked.

She looked up:

"Yes. . . . I have only been out a few times."

"I'll have another car up here in a few days. I'd like to take you out."

She was silent.

"Ever go to Saratoga?" he inquired.

"No."

"I'll take you to the races—with your mother. Would you like to go?"

She remained silent so long that he became a trifle uneasy.

"With your mother," he repeated, moving so he could see a little more of her face.

"I don't think mother would go," she said.

"Would she let you go?"

"I don't think so."

"There's nothing wrong with racing," he said. "If you don't bet money on horses."

Ignorant of Sport

But Rue knew nothing about sport and her ignorance as well as the suggested combination of Saratoga, automobile and horse racing left her silent again.

Brandes sat down on the parapet of the bridge and held his straw hat on his fat knees.

"Then we'll make it a family party," he said, "your father and mother and you, shall we? And we'll just go off for the day."

"Thank you."

"Would you like it?"

"Yes."

"Will you go?"

"I—work in the mill."

"Every day?"

"Yes."

"How about Sunday?"

"We go to church. . . . I don't know. . . . . Perhaps we might go in the afternoon."

"I'll ask your father," he said, watching the delicately flushed face with odd, almost sluggish persistency.

His gray-green eyes seemed hypnotized; he appeared unable to turn them elsewhere; and she, gradually becoming conscious of his scrutiny, kept her own eyes averted.

"What were you looking at in the water?" he asked.

"I was looking for our boat. It isn't there. I'm afraid it has gone over the dam."

"I'll help you search for it," he said, "when I come back from the village. I'm going to walk over and find somebody who'll cart that runabout to the railroad station. . . . You're not going that way, are you?" he added, rising.

"No."

"Then——" he lifted his hat high and put it on with care—"until a little later, Miss Carew. . . . And I want to apologize for speaking so familiarly to you yesterday. I'm sorry. It's a way we get into in New York. Broadway isn't good for a man's manners. . . . Will you firgive me, Miss Carew?"

Embarrassment kept her silent; she nodded her head, and finally turned and looked at him. His smile was agreeable.

She smiled faintly, too, and rose.

"Until later, then," he said. "This is the Gayfield road, isn't it?"

"Yes."

CHAPTER XCVIII.—Continued.

(Copyright, 1919, by King Feature Syndicate Inc.)

JIM'S voice got more and more aggrieved as he went on cataloging my misdemeanors and shortcomings. And again I felt the iciness of anger turning me into a hard mold of indifference. It was easy for me to speak now—I didn't care how my words hurt Jim—I had no desire to smooth things over and take the sting out of them.

"One thing at a time, please," I said, quietly. "I couldn't take that money because I felt you'd given it to me to buy my approval of your treatment of Tom Mason. I simply will not subscribe to that. So I put your—bribe—among your things."

"And then hustled my studs and links into my shirt so I'd not find it and raise Cain before Virginia's dinner," Jim broke in.

"I suppose that was my underlying motive," I agreed wearily.

"You know mighty well it was! I won't stand for your funny business, Anne. You raise a row over a blue robe that Tom Mason leaves here—you fling my money back into my face. And then you let Anthony Norreys stake you to a hundred a week"——

"Jim—how dare you? Stop—stop it this second!" I cried, cut to the quick by the twisting of facts. "You shan't put your own ugly interpretations on a beautiful charity. Mr. Norreys is giving his money to the canteen to buy food for soldiers who can't make their pay reach"——

"Oh, is he?" Jim's voice nicked out the words with ugly scorn. Old Norreys is a down-and-outer who can't get at women in any way except through their sympathy, and I won't have him buying his way into my wife's good graces by posing as a noble philanthropist. Now you remember that!"

"Perhaps you think I'm going to deprive the canteen of this fine endowment just to suit you?" I questioned with curt sarcasm.

"I know mighty well you are. And now take your ten dollars and cut out the high-faluting nonsense. I may be working for Norreys, but that doesn't give him the right to ruin my wife's life—and mine. I'll have him understand he can just cut out the interference."

Jim yawned in my face.

"For the love of mercy, Anne—cut out that everlasting whimper about Tom. Here I'll make a bargain with you. You leave me alone about that and I'll say no more about your harebrained canteening and your taking help from Norreys. Is it a bargain?"

"A bargain?" I asked slowly.

"Yes—you let me go my way—and I'll let you go yours. We'll cut out a bit of the lovey-dovey stuff and act like good pals. Maybe things will work better that way. Are you game?"

"I'm game," I replied almost in a daze.

"All right then—I'll pocket the ten. I've a use for two of it, even if you haven't. Come—shake on it—pal."

As I put my hand into Jim's my heart sank. Did our bargain mean that the romance—the poetry—the love was gone from our life together?

A PRESENT DAY AMERICAN ROMANCE

Interesting Story of Love at Cross Purposes of Two Sisters and a Man

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER LVI.

Copyright 1919, Star Company

MILDRED stopped in her own room on her way down to dinner. Turning on the light, she fastened back a stray wisp of hair, then, opening a small drawer, took out a bottle of liquid rouge. With her finger tips, she rubbed a little of this into her already flushed cheeks.

"Tom said once that he loved brilliant coloring—so I may as well make sure that mine will stay brilliant," she whispered.

She washed her hands, gave an additional polish to her well-shaped finger nails, and poured a few drops of perfume into her palms, rubbing it in well.

"He said he wanted to kiss my hand," she smiled. "I hope he will. He certainly has much prettier ways than Arthur has."

With a parting glance in the mirror at her pink cheeks and sparkling eyes, she went on down to the lower hall.

"Come right out to dinner, won't you?" she called to Tom.

The soup had been eaten, the meat and vegetables served, and Katie had gone into the kitchen, when Tom Chandler made a daring speech.

"Do you know," with a long look across the table at his vis-a-vis, "what this situation makes me think of?"

"No. What?" was the guileless query.

"It reminds me of two married people in their own little home at their own little table. It almost makes me sad. Mildred—and it makes me envious."

Tom Starts to Compliment

"Envious?" she repeated.

Her heart was beating with joy. He was about to say some of the things she longed to hear him say.

"Yes," he insisted, "it makes me envious of Bruce. He's a lucky dog. I hope he knows how lucky. I suppose," regretfully, "that when I return you and he will be married. Just think of it!"

"Indeed we will not be married!" Mildred exclaimed.

"Why not?"

"Because I am in no hurry to get married. Anyway, I would not think of such a thing until the war is over. It may be that Arthur will go himself."

"You mean,"—the question was put so innocently that it was hard to believe that the sting it contained was intentional—"you mean that he will be drafted?"

"I mean that he may enlist," Mildred declared. "You do not look as if you believed that. Why don't you?"

"Because," he explained gently, "the men who have any idea of enlisting are doing so now."

"But Arthur feels he should not just now. He is needed at home—or so he says," she added desperately.

She felt a sudden disgust for Arthur. Why need he put her in a position where she must apologize for him?

"He would claim exemption on the very grounds that keep him from enlisting now," Chandler argued. "However, we will talk of other things"—as Katie entered to remove the second course.

He did not refer to the subject again until he and Mildred were sipping their coffee.

"Who is that walking upstairs?" he asked.

"It is Katie, taking Mrs. Higgins' dinner to her," Mildred answered.

"Will she be up there long?" he queried boldly.

"Until Mrs. Higgins has finished."

A Bold Proposal

"That will not be for twenty minutes or so, will it?" he asked.

"No, certainly not. Why?"

"Because I will enjoy my coffee better if I bring my chair around by you!" he ventured. "May I?"

Without waiting for her consent he lifted his chair and cup, and seated himself at her left hand.

"Now this is what I call cozy, and"—with a long sigh—"it is not so terribly suggestive of what can never be as it is when you are at the head of the table and I at the foot—just as if we were settled in."

She did not speak.

"You know, dear," he said, "that in spite of the rather good bluff I put up, you mean a lot to me, and I find it hard to think of you as belonging to another man."

"I don't—yet," she murmured.

"Ah, but you will! Yet until you do—I mean until you are married—you will continue to think of me, and you will write to me often, won't you?" he pleaded.

She nodded. He took her hand in his and held it close.

"You might write to me just a little every day, then mail the letter once a week," he suggested. "It will mean something for me to look forward to while we are separated. I wish (glancing around at the sideboard) that I had something here in which to drink to your health during my absence."

Mildred had a happy thought. She could still hear Katie in the room upstairs serving Mrs. Higgins' dinner. She stood up quickly.

"There's some peach brandy here in the sideboard," she said, producing the bottle and two small glasses. "But," hesitatingly, "it is against rules to give liquor to a man in uniform."

"Who cares?" the man said, springing to his feet. "Nobody will know!"

Filling the glasses, he placed one in her hand, first drawing her hand through his arm. Lifting his own glass, he drained it as she drained hers. Then, still holding his glass, he bent and kissed her uplifted face.

There was an exclamation from the dining room door. Arthur Bruce and Honora Brett stood there looking in.

Economy in Housework

By Loretto C. Lynch

"I WOULD—but it's so expensive," said Ann in answer to her friend's question. They were talking about maids, servants, helpers or whatsoever they call those people nowadays who occasionally accept your invitation to work in your home for a little larger remuneration than you receive yourself. Evelyn had suggested electric helpers, but Ann had heard that things electric were expensive, and without any further investigation, she decided then and there never to commit the extravagance of using the miraculous electric helpers that the housewife of today may have.

The average wife of the middle class is wise not to undertake the heavy laundry work if she can possibly afford to have it done for her. And yet women who "wash" for a living are often difficult to obtain and, everything considered, higher in price. And yet good health as well as self-respect demand that we have clean clothing. What's to be done?

There is always the woman who is sure she cannot afford the up-to-date in anything. A woman whose story I know too well belonged to this class. She was in delicate health and the doctor forbade her to do any heavy housework. But she had three little children and her husband made only $[illegible] a week. [illegible] women demanded $2.60 plus meals and laundry materials, and war prices prevailed. And so she did the family wash herself.

But some doctors know what they are talking about and hers seemed to be among those who know. And after she washed this particular Monday she fainted. She was hurried off to the hospital where she spent four hospital weeks. Somehow she could afford $75 a week while she was there.

"A woman never appreciates her health until she loses it," she said weakly upon her return. "I was foolish not to consider the electric washing machine, especially when we have electric current in the house. Do you know the agent offered it to me on small monthly payments that did not exceed by much what I should have paid a washerwoman. But I could not see [illegible]. But if I had my chance over again."

Until you have used the washing machine, and especially an electric washing machine, you cannot appreciate what an enormous help it is. A very large washing, including such heavy things as woolen blankets and bath mats, can be done in three hours.

Hints for the Dressmaker

By Rita Stuyvesant

HAVE you seen the numerous new bits of toggery that make our women on the avenue so chic? Tailored vests and "stocks" that add much cache to last Winter's suit, new net sleeves that will transform your satin dress into a smart gown, clever girdles with long panels attached to add charm to your dance frock, and dozens of other useful bits of finery are displayed in those exclusive little shops on the avenue where the smart set pass daily.

To wear with the new box coat suit there are some distinctive little vests of satin brocade in white, rose, Foch blue, gold or gray. They are so delightfully simple to make that one can have several waists for each suit.

Cut in the coat length, these vests fit close about the neck, but broaden out to twelve inches at the bottom. Sometimes there are cunning slit pockets for change and others show small patch pockets. Many are conspicuous by their absence of any pockets. The round neck is finished by a collar fastened in the back and can be worn outside the coat. To prevent the vest from slipping there are narrow ribbons sewed at the waistline, which tie around the figure, holding the vest firmly.

When Are You Old?

By Brice Belden, M. D.

EVERYONE has heard of the expression, "A man is as old as his arteries." Old age comes about through a hardening process of the arteries and a narrowing of their channels as well, so that the blood supply of the vital organs fails, besides that of the tissues in general. This brings about a loss in efficiency and a process of shriveling. Deterioration and decay follow, and the flame of life burns lower and lower until finally it flickers out.

As a matter of fact very few people die of old age. The average length of life is about fifty years. But a vast number of people die of hardening of the arteries and associated diseases of the heart and kidneys while comparatively young. They die because they have aged prematurely. While, as we have said, they do not die of old age, they are carried off by conditions which are characteristic of advanced years.

How long should a man live, or when should he be considered old?

The natural span of life would be about 120 years, which shows how very far we are from approximating the intentions of Nature. Persons have been known to live 150 years, which is really beyond the natural span. It would be difficult to account for such instances occurring in spite of a highly civilized environment, for it is our highly civilized environment and the necessity of adjustment to it that kills men before their time.

There are about 4,000 centenarians living in the United States at the present time. It is estimated that in the whole world there are about 20,000 people not less than a hundred years old.

One becomes old at a time determined by the hereditary tendency of one's stock, by one's temperament, by the intensity with which one has played the game of civilized life, by one's dietetic habits, by the extent to which one has lived and played and rested in the open, and by the extent to which on has consumed poisons like alcohol, tobacco and caffeine.

Polite Phraseology

Miss Oldbury, who prides herself upon her correctness in the framing of ordinary sentences, was industriously plying her knitting needles when she was accosted by her friend, Miss Hawkins, who said, "You are very busy, Clementina."

"Yes," replied Miss Oldbury, "I have a cousin in the army who is a very tall man. This sweater is for him, and although I have been knitting it for two weeks I am afraid three weeks more must elapse before it is ready for occupancy."

Scalp irritation is most objectionable

Scratching the head can become such a habit that it singles you out as undesirable company. In addition, you are exposing a raw surface continually to the chance of infection. Get rid of that desire to scratch by washing the head with Resinol Soap and touching the sore and irritated spots with Resinol Ointment.

Their healing and soothing medication bring quick relief and in a short time generally clear away the trouble entirely. The joint use of the soap and ointment seldom fails to overcome pimples, blackheads, and eruptions of an unsightly character.

TELLS HOW HE GOT RID OF HIS CORNS

Well-Known Man Relates Remarkable Experience

"By George, I never saw anything like the effect of that new treatment Ice-Mint for removing corns and bringing quick relief to tired, swollen, aching burning feet. It acted like a miracle in my case," said a well-known man yesterday, in speaking of this discovery which has caused such a big stir among Foot Specialists. "I had carried a pet corn for years that simply took all the joy out of life. I tried plasters, salves, ether compounds and all of the other 'dope' that is supposed to do the trick, but the pestering thing simply would not leave me. I began to think there was nothing on earth that would kill my corn, when I finally read about the remarkable results obtained by foot-sufferers from the use of Ice-Mint. I decided to try it for myself and before I hardly realized it my corn came out, root and all—and without causing the least pain or soreness. Believe me, it seems mighty good not to be afraid some one is going to hit my pet corn—and the relief—well, that just seems like Paradise."

Ice-Mint is a pure, snow-white, creamy preparation made from a genuine Japanese product and is highly appreciated by women who wear high heel shoes and [illegible] their feet all day. It draws the inflammation out of swollen, tired or burning feet and loosens hard or soft corns so they can easily be lifted out with the fingers—root and all, besides it imparts such a delightful, cooling, soothing sensation that you will just sigh with relief. It is selling like "Wild Fire" here. Try it. Just ask in any drug store for a little Ice-Mint and give your poor, suffering, tired, aching feet the treat of their lives.

There is nothing better, or nothing just as good.

After several applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff. Your hair appears soft, glossy and twice as thick and abundant. Try it.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Advertisement.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, are those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs.—Advertisement.

Stocks Up in New York; Afternoon Trading Quiet

U.S. STEEL SELLS AT 99 IN NOON TRADING

Motors at Best Prices and Equipments Strong and Active

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York in the afternoon, but ruled below best prices for the day. They were at their highest during the noon hour. U. S. Steel sold at 99 at midday and at 99⅛ later. American Can crossed 50. Baldwin and American Locomotive were among the strongest and most active issues. U. S. Rubber and Atlantic Gulf were also at their highest for the day. Tobassos were strong as a group. It was reported that the tobacco war in New York city is near an end. Shipping stocks were up, although the announcement of the United States government's maritime policy indicated it will not buy the British fleet of the International Mercantile Marine Company. Money was firm, the call rate being 6 per cent. on mixed collateral and 6½ on industrials.

GAINS IN TH EAFTERNOON.

Trading had been on a fair scale during the morning and over midday, and the market had developed no reactionary tendency. Gains in the afternoon included U. S. Steel, 1½ at 99; Bethlehem B, 2¾ at 68⅝; Crucible, 1⅛ at 67; American Can, 1⅛ at 49⅝; Industrial Alcohol, 3⅛ at 143⅝; Corn Products, 2½ at 55⅛; Hide & Leather preferred, 1⅝ at 97⅞.

Baldwin, 1¾ at 88¾; Amrican Locomotive, 2¼ at 67; General Motors, 3⅝ at 165⅝; Studebaker, 1¼ at 63½; Atlantic Gulf, 1⅞ at 113⅞; Marine preferred, 1¼ at 112⅝; U. S. Rubber, 1⅝ at 83; Tobacco Products, 1 at 92½; United Cigar Stores, 1¾ at 136½; Mexican Petroleum, ⅞ at 181⅞; Pan-American, 1 at 80; Texas Co., 3⅛ at 211⅜; Royal Dutch, new, 1⅝ at 90½, and Reading, ½ at 83¾.

The market was fairly active during the morning with most of the business in steel, oil, motor and distilling issues. Industrial Alcohol was a feature, showing a four-point gain at its highest. Among other stocks to show large gains during the forenoon were Bethlehem B, Canadian Pacific, General Motors, Kelly-Springfield, Mexican Petroleum, Republic Steel, Texas Co. and Royal Dutch new. U. S. Steel sold at 98⅝, at its highest. Sinclair Oil sold at 46¾, a new high record price. Corn Products attained a highest record at 55¾. After a strong start and considerable activity at times the market grew quiet and prices yielded a little. But no reactionary tendency developed. Stocks were not plentiful.

SWIFT A FEATURE HERE.

The Boston market was quiet as usual, but it was strong. Swift & Co. and Fairbanks were features of local trading both as regards activity and advances. Swift sold at 134½, its highest for the year to date. Trading in coppers was limited and they were irregular and narrow in price movement. International Products was not traded in to any extent. Massachusetts Electric issues were stronger during the morning.

STEELS FEATURED THE OPENING.

Steels were the feature at the opening, with oils, alcohols and motors also active. There was an urgent demand for stocks as soon as the market began. Short covering was a factor in the advance, which was in evidence all through the list. But the market had the same professional aspects as charaterized yesterday's trading. Reports from Paris that progress is being made toward peace were the strongest bullish influence, but statements concerning trade conditions were also contributory to the advance. Increased buying of steel products is looked for soon and a firmer price for copper is most encouraging. Textile mills see more business ahead. Stocks of staples of every kind are small and basic industries are beginning to reflect the country's normal needs.

No Change in Copper Metal

No change is reported in the copper market. Sales yesterday were small. Large interests are asking from 15¼ to 15½ cents a pound for metal delivered. Small dealers have so little on hand they are quoting the same price. Copper exports for January are estimated at 31,062,080 pounds.

Steel Buying to Follow

Although statements have been made that the result of the reduction of prices for steel have been disappointing to date, this does not apply to the trade apparently. The "Iron Age," ordinarily accepted as a spokesman for the industry, says in its current issue: "The opinion is general in the steel trade that the reduced prices announced by the Industrial Board at Washington on March 20 will bring out in the near future a moderate amount of new business, most of which buyers have held up since the stabilizing movement loomed up six weks ago.

PROTECTION FOR LIBERTY BOND HOLDERS

Savings Banks or Trust Companies Accept Bonds as Loan Security

The savings banks and trust companies of New England have interested themselves in the movement to protect holders of Liberty Bonds from loan sharks and dishonest traders in securities.

In doing this, they are prepared in practically every part of New England to loan on the small Liberty Bonds up to 80 per cent. of their value or to buy fully paid or partly paid bonds on the basis of the last sale on the Boston Stock Exchange, with 25 cents commission for each $50 bond, or to refer them to some reputable broker.

This service is directly in line with the action asked of Congress by the Secretary of the Treasury to prevent dealers in questionable securities from reducing Liberty bondholders into exchanging their Liberty bonds for securities of doubtful value. The savings banks and trust companies are co-operating with the Liberty Loan Committee of New England and are giving every day evidence of the extent to which they will go in saving unsuspecting or hard-pressed Liberty bondholders from the wiles of the promoter of shady transactions.

SALES OF ALL ISSUES.

The history of every Liberty Loan has shown that a certain percentage of the buyers, from one reason or another, has found it necessary to dispose of one or more Liberty bonds.

It has not infrequently been the case that a man or woman who has put $50 or $100 into one of the Liberty Loans in the past two years, brought face to face with a sudden doctor's bill or an emergency call of considerable size, has seen no other way to meet the debt than in disposing of a Liberty Bond.

The savings banks and trust companies are the places to which the holders of such bonds should go. In going to them the bondholders can be assured of receiving every dollar of the rate at which the bonds are selling in the financial markets in case of a sale.

If the Liberty bondholder desires to borrow on the bond, instead of selling, he can borrow from 80 to 85 per cent. in practically any savings bank or trust company in New England. The making of loans was undertaken originally by several of the largest savings banks in Massachusetts and has now spread practically through all six States. In many cases where the bondholder does not need to use the entire proceeds of the loan, he deposits a part in the bank that has made the loan.

ADVICE TO BONDHOLDERS.

In case of selling a Liberty bond, the advice put out by the Liberty Loan Committee in a poster and distributed throughout New England says:

"If you must sell, you are advised before doing so to consult with the management of this bank, who will either recommend some reputable broker or will buy your bonds; or this bank will purchase $50 and $100 bonds in moderate amounts on the following basis: Fully or partially paid, last sale quotation on the Boston Stock Exchange on previous day, with accrued interest to date of purchase, less 25 cents for each $50 bond and for each multiple thereof."

REORGANIZATION PLAN OF MASS. ELECTRIC EFFECTIVE

Lee, Higginson & Co., reorganization managers under the Bay State Street Railway Co. - Massachusetts Electric Companies plan and agreement of reorganization, dated March 6, 1919, make the following announcement:

"Deposits involving over $2,000,000 of payments for securities of the new company have been received from holders of Massachusetts Electric Companies preferred and common shares and of Bay State Street Railway Co. preferred stock. The underwriting is, therefore, effective.

"The time for making deposits under the plan is extended until the close of business April 4, 1919."

Export Financing Plan

According to the plan the War Finance Corporation has devised to enable foreign importers to avail themselves of the $1,000,000,000 fund it may advance against American exports, bills drawn against shipments will run an initial period of ninety days, with additional renewals to cover a maximum of five years.

Corporation Earnings

The McCrory Stores Corporation reports for 1918 a surplus of $223,981, which is equal to $4.48 a share earned on common, against $198,570 surplus or $3.97 a share in 1917.

The American-La France Fire Engine Company reports for 1918 net earnings after taxes of $309,348, compared with $435,355 in 1917 and $353,570 in 1916. This is equal to 11.7 per cent. on the common stock, against 20 per cent. in 1917 and 14 per cent. in 1916.

The Lackawanna Steel Company reports for 1918 profits after taxes of $8,348,354, equal to $23.78 a share against $45.89 earned in 1917.

'ONE MAN POWER' RESENTED BY R. I. SENATE

Providence, March 28.—The question of legalizing Sunday baseball has started a general row in the State Senate and members threaten to forget political ethics if the Senate Judiciary Committee chairman, George T. Gorton of Pawtucket, refuses to call a meeting of that committee to consider the bill which passed the House of Representatives recently after a public hearing.

Members favorable to Sunday baseball charge the contemplated burial of the measure is intended by the chairman, who is recorded as against legalizing Sunday baseball. Others say the old game of politics is being played and say the delay in reporting the bill, if it is reported, is for the purpose of trading measures with country members who are willing to change their ideas on Sunday baseball for small favors granted.

The recent coup, successfully conducted by opponents of Sunday baseball when the Senate Judiciary Committee room was filled with Boston opponents, when it was expected that President Faunce of Brown University and Bishop James De Wolf Perry of the Episcopal Church would appear and protest against the passage of the measure, is said to be the real cause of the row among the Senators who say they are tired of "one-man power."

As committees may report bills, if the chairman so decrees, it is a so-called "gentlemen's agreement" that no action is looked for if the chairman of any committee refuses to call a meeting to consider any of the measures referred to any committee. This, say irate members, will be "kicked gally-west" if the baseball measure is scheduled for burial.

The charge that a country member heretofore favorable to Sunday baseball changed his mind, when an appropriation was increased from one to six thousand dollars for the maintenance of some measure of interest to the country senator, started the row which threatens to upset the smoothly-running political machinery.

PRIVILEGES RESTORED TO SING SING INMATES

Ossining, N. Y., March 28.—Inmates of Sing Sing prison are jubilant over a message received by prison attaches saying the Mutual Welfare League can again hold its semi-annual election, forbidden by Warden William Moyer in January, after he leaves office on April 15. Attendants state that Thomas Mott Osborne, who installed the league, and other reformers, have arranged matters at Albany so that many of the league's privileges, curtailed by Warden Moyer, will be restored.

PLANE FIRM FIXES SITE FOR FLIGHT

St. John's, N. F., March 28.—Preparatory work is being done at Harbor Grace for the Handley Page Company in connection with the proposed transatlantic airplane flight, it was learned, is on a large scale and involves about $50,000. One square mile has been leased for a year. One hundred men will be placed at work on Monday clearing the property.

Machines for the flight are expected to leave Liverpool April 3 on the Furness liner Sachem and arrive here about ten days later.

BRITISH HOLDING HOME MARKET FOR OWN GOODS

This is not a propitious time for the sale of American goods in England, according to Thomas W. Pelham, sales manager and director of the Gillette Razor Company. He is home after visiting that country, France, Italy and Scandinavia.

"England is in the throes of a labor crisis," he said. "Many of the returning soldiers want jobs better than they had before, and there are not enough 'good jobs' to go around. There seems to be a disposition to believe that the British import embargoes are levelled at the outside world, particularly the United States. The fact of the matter is that the British are thinking only of their internal situation. England is now a debtor country. As may be imagined, this is distinctly galling to British pride, and they will not remain in that position any longer than they can help. The embargoes spring from a desire to keep money in the country and to provide employment for British workers."

JUDGE GARY ON LABOR COST IN STEEL TRADE

When Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the directorate of the United States Steel Corporation, was asked what part of the cost of steel production applies to labor, he replied:

"From the raw product to the finished product in our lines it is probably at least 85 per cent.

"Wage rates have increased 131 per cent since February 1, 1916."

BECOMES FLIER TO CARRY OUT MOVIE ROLE

One of the many interesting war scenes shown in "The Heart of Humanity" being shown at Tremont Temple.

William Stowell, who plays the hero, a Canadian aviator, in "The Heart of Humanity," now being shown at Tremont Temple, is possessed of a daring unusual even among the players of the screen.

It is a large order indeed to ask a man who never had ridden in an aeroplane or knew nothing about them, to set about to learn how to operate one and make a real flight in order to carry out the requirements of his role.

SHOWS HUMAN SIDE OF WAR.

In this story, which reveals the human side of the war, without indulging too much in the martial nature of the conflict, there are some scenes decidedly military in character.

And the leading male role is that of the young husband of Nanette, a Red Cross nurse, played with telling effect by Dorothy Phillips.

He had enlisted in the aviation force and was in France with his air brigade at the opening of the war.

There comes a big scene, which requires him to go on a reconnoitering expedition which results in the saving of one of his brothers, and a later scene showing him in his machine which has been set on fire and falls to the ground.

In order to present these scenes properly it would not be possible to indulge in any of the trickeries of picture taking, else the veracity would be lost. So Mr. Stowell had no other recourse but to become a real honest-to-goodness aviator.

STUDIED FLYING METHODS.

To affect this he went to a military aviation camp in California and passed a novitiate period of time learning the intricacies of the aeroplane and the methods of flying. In due course of time he became an accomplished aviator.

So it was that when he was required to enter the aeroplane and start from the ground to soar high in the clouds he did so naturally, and there was never a stop of the cranking camera to suggest a faking of the scene.

Britain to Improve Tanks; Plan for Smaller Armies

By International News Service.

London, March 28.—Tanks, as an implement of war, will not be abolished by Great Britain. The value of these moving forts of steel which played such an important part in breaking the Hindenburg line, is considered so great that a committee superseding the government tank board has been organized by the War Office to supervise all tank activities. Experiments will be carried on in hope of improving the "whippets" and the gun-carrying type. The plan is for more tanks and smaller armies.

Officials of the War Office realize that an army of 50,000 men equipped with tanks and airplanes could easily defeat a force of 100,000 men without tanks.

200 ON HAND AT BANQUET OF BANKERS

Entire Staff of Institution Make Merry at Annual Dinner

Cheers for President Alfred L. Ripley and for the Merchants National Bank resounded through the banquet hall of the Hotel Westminister at the annual dinner dance of the Merchants Bank.

The entire staff, from messenger girls to president and directors, nearly 200 strong, were on hand to enjoy the occasion.

During the progress of the dinner, President Ripley, on behalf of the officers, presented a silver desk watch to Vice-President Charles B. Wiggin, who leaves the Merchants on April 1 to assume his new duties as a partner in the firm of Bond and Goodwin.

The dinner was enlivened by an enjoyable program rendered by the Merchants' Bank Glee Club. It was the first appearance of the glee club as a mixed chorus, and the zest and precision with which it rendered the various numbers bore evidence to the careful training which it has had under the guidance of Ernest R. Sharpe, director.

The program consisted of several numbers by the glee club in chorus, interspersed by solos, and a comedy sketch entitled, "Tony's Trio."

SONG EXPRESSES SPIRIT.

The spirit of the Merchants staff was inspiringly expressed in the song to the president, sung to the tune of "Good Night, Ladies," as follows:

Alfred Ripley, Alfred Ripley, Alfred Ripley,
We're with you one and all.
We'll stand by our President, President, President,
We'll stand by our President
Till the planets fall.

Good old Merchants, good old Merchants', good old Merchants',
The finest bank of all;
May she grow and never stop, never stop, never stop,
May she grow and never stop,
Till she leads them all.

JAZZ BAND ON HAND.

The festivities began with a reception from 6 to 6:30, followed by dinner and entertainment, after which dancing was enjoyed to the strains of Louisiana Jim's Jazz Band.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the evening consisted of E. L. Bowker, E. W. Norton, W. R. S. Eaton and E. R. Sharpe.

Oscar Straus Spoke Wisely for American People

When the French and British delegates proposed that the Constitution of the League of Nations shall automatically put every member in a state of war against any nation that violates the rules of the League, they were informed by Oscar S. Straus that this would conflict with the Constitution of the United States, which gives the American Congress the sole power to declare the United States at war.

Whereupon Lord Shaw, the British presiding officer, remarked:

> If by this Constitution the United States is unable to pledge itself, then the Constitution of the United States is one over which the citizens will have to bethink themselves. There are certain duties to the world which are as wide as humanity, and the United States must bethink itself of that.

Lord Shaw's admonition is as unnecessary as it is insolent. He need not worry about the people of the United States.

They ARE thinking about their Constitution.

They are thinking about the constant tendency to violate the Constitution, to set aside the mandates of the Constitution, to make naught of the spirit and the letter of their Great Charter.

And they are getting very impatient of such tendencies and such impeachable encroachments and aggressions.

More particularly are the people growing impatient of foreign and domestic urgings that we put our Constitution second in authority to foreign councils and foreign decrees.

There is a suspicion of a veiled threat in Lord Shaw's remark which he would do well to omit from any other talk directed at America.

The American people have not forgotten that the one thing which enabled the peace settlements to be dictated at Paris instead of at Berlin was the military and naval power of the United States.

We do not expect any gratitude from the allies, and are not surprised at its total absence.

But we do expect recognition of our power and our place in the world, and we shall not kindly take nor silently submit to impudent comment upon our form of free government or to threatening warning that we had better change our Constitution.

And, in the meantime, let's get out of Europe and let these all-wise statesmen over there show what they can do with their own problems before they set up as our guides.

Speaking for Their Own Jobs, but Not for the Public

The National Organization of the State Public Utilities Commissions has spoken against the Federal operation of the railroads and telegraph companies.

Their LIVELIHOOD depends upon the private ownership and operation of these public utilities. Their job is to regulate the privately managed public utilities; they are paid for doing it.

They rarely ever do it well. A great many of them are appointed in order that they shall NOT do it well.

None of them, however intelligent, courageous and able, are capable of regulating the evils out of a public utility like the railroads, the telephones, the telegraph companies, the street railways, the gas and electric light companies under private management.

The regulation by these public utility commissions of the public utility corporations under private management has been the most notorious and dangerous failure of any experiment which the American people have made in half a century.

The private management of the companies these men are appointed to regulate in the public interest generally see to it that those who are appointed on those commissions are kept men—not all of them, of course, are of this character, but down through the years SO MANY OF THEM have been of this sort that even if regulating private management of public utilities were not inherently impossible, it would have been impossible, on account of the character of the man appointed, to do the regulating honestly and efficiently.

But the public regulation of a privately managed public utility is inherently impossible. It was bound to fail from the beginning, even though genuine statesmen instead of petty paid corporation attorneys had dominated these public utility regulating commissions.

Regulation in America has been tried ad nauseum. It has miserably failed. Public regulation with private management absolutely broke down during the war.

We would have lost the war if the government had not taken the railroads. With the French and British beaten on every front and trembling on the edge of collapse, waiting for America's arrival, our ships were lying empty at the docks because the railroads under the private management were unable to deliver the men and the goods and the munitions to them. Confusion and every other form of failure characterized private management before the government, in sheer desperation, took possession of the railroads.

We may safely discredit the opinion of the public utilities commissions concerning public operation. It is safe to say of their opinion that it is worthless because it is not disinterested.

First, they are speaking for their PUBLIC jobs; second, they are speaking for the private jobs which many of them held with corporations before they went into a quasi public service and which nearly all of them hope to secure when the term of their public service, or rather public office holding, is over. Naturally they urge that the railroads be sent back to those who brought so many railroads to grief, while they themselves go through the well known empty forms of regulating them, meanwhile drawing good salaries out of the taxes which the public pays for services they never render and never could render, even should they some time sincerely try.

SENT TO our hotel.

A POTTED plant.
• • •
WITH SOME tiny buds.
• • •
THAT OPENED their eyes.
• • •
ON THE second day.
• • •
AND WHEN night time came.
• • •
CLOSED THEM up again.
• • •
AND DID the same thing.
• • •
FOR TWO or three days.
• • •
AND TWO or three nights.
• • •
AND THEN the day came.
• • •
THAT WE were to leave.
• • •
AND WE packed our trunks.
• • •
AND PACKED our grips.
• • •
AND THE porter came.
• • •
AND TOOK them away.
• • •
AND THE room was bare.
• • •
OF EVERYTHING.
• • •
BUT ITS furniture.
• • •
AND THE potted plant.
• • •
• • •
WE LOOKED around.
• • •
TO BE very sure.
• • •
THAT NOTHING remained.
• • •
THAT BELONGED to us.
• • •
AND THE only thing.
• • •
WAS THE potted plant.
• • •
AND WE looked at it.
• • •
AND IT seemed to plead.
• • •
THAT IT go along.
• • •
BUT RAILWAY trains.
• • •
AND STUFFY cars.
• • •
MAKE VERY poor places.
• • •
FOR POTTED plants.

AND WE bade it good-by.

AND LEFT it there.

AND WENT downstairs.

AND PAID our bill.
• • •
AND PREPARED to go.
• • •
AND A picture came.
TO THE both of us.
• • •
OF THE poor little plant.
• • •
THAT HAD been our friend.
• • •
AND WE saw it there.
• • •
IN ITS lonely state.
• • •
IN THE great big room.
• • •
AND THE lady I married.
• • •
A LONG time ago.
• • •
JUST WHISPERED to me.
• • •
THAT I'D better go back.
• • •
AND WE'D take it along.
• • •
AND SO I did.
• • •
AND IT'S with us now.
• • •
IN A four-walled room.
• • •
IN A Pullman car.
• • •
ON THE window sill.
• • •
AND WHERE it looks.
• • •
IS A desert land.
• • •
AND IT'S growing sad.
• • •
AND ITS bright little eyes.
• • •
ARE BEGINNING to droop.
• • •
AND WHEN night time comes.
• • •
'TWILL have passed away.
• • •
AND WE'LL leave it here.
• • •
IN THE desert land.
• • •
AND GO on our way.
• • •
AND IT'S all very cruel.
• • •
BUT WHAT can we do?
• • •
IT SHOULDN'T have coaxed us.
• • •
TO TAKE it along.

I THANK you.

SELF-PRESERVATION IN MAINE

A Boston moving picture salesman rented an eight-reel Alaskan "thriller" to a small-town house manager in Maine. The salesman feared lest his customer lose money on this high-rental film. Later he learned that the Down East manager had run the first four reels one night to a packed house, then announced the last four reels for the next night. Everybody had to see the finish. So the manager made two admissions grew where the salesman had figured on only one. The salesman quit worrying about this rural manager.

Same salesman rented a $60 film to another Maine manager. Worried again lest this client lose money. Manager said—after the contract was signed: "Don't fret. A Summer millionaire here gave me $100 to hire this film for his benefit. I'm $40 to the good now, with box-office money to come."

Salesman isn't worrying about that manager, either.

"PIGS IS PIGS"

Winchester Health Board announces an anti-pig drive. To encourage food production during the war 150 pig-keeping licenses were issued. The end of the war, however, renews hostilities against Br'er Pig in former Governor McCall's fair town. Pig-keeping licenses are to be reduced to a pre-war minimum. Complaints by non-keepers have accused the pigs in regard to sight, sound and odor. The health authorities find the pigs guilty on all three counts.

Pupils at the Springfield High School of Commerce are struggling with a "better speech" week, trying to avoid slang. The casualty list at the end of the week is awaited with interest by those who are familiar with the ordinary conversation of high school pupils, boys and girls both. For some it would mean a "speechless week."

SELF-SUPPORT IS CHANGING MARRIAGE VIEWS

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

THE old order changeth.

But in no direction does old order ever change without putting up a stiff fight. To the last its weakening fingers clutch desperately at the symbols of authority.

One phase of this universal conflict—a phase which has been rather overshadowed in the presence of more dramatic issues, but which nevertheless, I gather from the letters I receive, is occupying considerable thought—lies in the marriage question.

From the days when women were regarded as mere chattels, an asset to be bartered for so many oxen or sheep or ponies, or as in the case of Jacob and Laban for so much labor, up until practically the present parents have always looked upon themselves as parties in interest to any contract of marriage upon which their daughers engaged.

It has been so with the sons, too, and still is under certain conditions, but only as a tradition from the old patriarchal system, or where the son is dependent on his parents for support.

Marry Whom They Wish

Generally speaking, our young American men, having gone out into the world and achieved their independence, marry to suit themselves and according to the dictates of their hearts—unless the parents of the girl happen to put in a veto.

But with our girls fathers and mothers still maintain their ancient prerogative, if not as openly and autocratically as in the days when they used to sell them for sheep and oxen, or over a glass of wine betroth them in their cradles, locking up those who proved mutinous or recalcitrant until they came to their senses, still quite as certainly in a hundred subtler ways.

It is no longer hard-hearted Papa who comes crashing down on Daughter's romantic dreams, but the more strategic Mamma, who from a dozen different angles of atack and by that constant repetition which it is said will wear away a stone, strives to persuade the girl that love is not all and that she will be wiser to let older heads choose her an eligible mate.

The old order dies hard. Its strength is riveted in years of custom. It clings jealously to its forms and rituals. Even today it is a matter of courtesy, if nothing else, that a young man should ask the formal consent of his sweetheart's parents, although there is no more sense to the proceeding than if she should ask his parents for their son.

And there is reason in it, too, so long as the daughter is under age or continues to occupy a dependent position—just as much reason for parents to try and make sure that their girls will be well provided and cared for, as that they should try to start their sons in some profitable vocation.

Now Think Differently

But with the growing economic independence of women a different idea is gaining ground. Girls who are capable of earning their own living are saying in effect to their parents:

"I owe you affection and consideration. Should you need it, I am under obligation to try and return the care and protection you gave me. I shall be glad to listen to your honest advice and shall consider carefully everything you have to say. But in what is perhaps the most important step of my life, concerned chiefly with my own happiness, I reserve to myself the right of final decision, and I shall expect you cheerfully to acquiesce. If I marry, I shall marry for love alone, because I don't have to consider anything else."

THRILL FOLLOWS THRILL IN ROMANCE

Thrill follows thrill in the masterly Haggard romance, "Moon of Israel." Are you reading it? Mystery, adventure, love in the far-away days of the Hebrew persecution in Egypt, are unfolded with such graphic realism, such beauty of expression and careful attention to every detail, that we seem to live again with Ana and Seti and Merapi, the beautiful, in his "Moon of Israel." The Mother Burned
Solomon Knew Why
Slander Causes Murder
Foolish, Stole One Cent

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

A wooden house burned.

A mother, father and three children were in it. The mother and father got out. The mother went back into the flames to save her children and was burned to death. The newspaper says the "father was injured."

The mother, before she was burned, took one child to the window, dropped it down to the father, went back for the others, and never returned. It happened in Richmond Hill, Long Island, on Wednesday morning.

It is a story duplicated all over the world, wherever mothers know that their children are in danger. This will interest Senators and others who think women are not fit to vote.

Next to the column that tells you of the woman trying to save her children, you read this headline: "Jealous Wife Kills Two Babies and Herself." The woman that dies to save her children, the woman that kills herself and her children through jealousy, are both accounted for in eleven words of the song of songs, which is Solomon's.

"Love Is Strong as Death; Jealousy Is Cruel as the Grave."

From the Argentine is reported a massacre of Jews, the pretext being a false statement that "Jews were fomenting a Bolshevist revolution." This harmful lie that results in murder has been diligently spread in this country by a certain Protestant minister, who ought to be suppressed. There should be some way of quieting—in jail if necessary—those whose brutal race and religious prejudices spread the slanders that result in assassination, as in Buenos Aires now.

Joseph Karsap stole a handbag in the street from Gladys Roalef. There was one cent in the handbag, no more. Karsap, twenty-two years old, was sentenced to three and a half years in State prison.

He had been convicted before, so it was all right. But can you imagine how certain profiteers must have smiled, as they read that news, leaning back in the well stuffed cushions of their softly rolling limousine.

It must have occurred to many of them that a man really deserves to go to prison for being foolish enough to steal so little, in a great country like this.

When aniline dyes ceased coming from Germany, the business men in America promptly found energy, capital and courage necessary to make dyes here. It was then suggested by this writer that these men should be protected and the dye industry in the United States preserved for them after the war. It is a pleasure to announce a decision of the War Trade Board that the dye industry of the United States is to be protected. Those that had the foresight and courage to develop the industry at a time of need will be properly protected. Aniline dyes are made up of petroleum, labor, scientific knowledge and intelligence. We have those things in the United States, no need to import them.

A by-product of the aniline dye industry is necessary in making high explosives. Another reason for encouraging that industry. There is no knowledge when high explosives will again be the most important world product.

In Labrador the influenza has practically wiped out the population. It is a terrible and mysterious disease. If it had worked in the United States as it has in Labrador it would have killed more than seventy-five million of people here. Entire Labrador communities have been wiped out, literally, not five in one hundred left alive. In one case all the inhabitants on one island died. Their bodies were devoured by wild animals.

That happens in many places where human beings have not developed the power to resist disease. It is literally as necessary to educate the white corpuscles in the blood that fight disease germs as it is to educate the brain that fights Nature and her problems.

They have arranged in New York to stop peddling on the streets by soldiers. Officials announce that it has "become a nuisance."

Hereafter, according to a city magistrate of New York, fines will be imposed on soldiers peddling without a license.

How encouraging it would be if authorities would show as much energy helping soldiers to make a living as in preventing it.

Soldiers are not anxious to be peddlers.

Give them other work at fair pay and you will find that out.

U. S. Tells Deserters Who Joined Allies to Surrender

By International News Service.

Washington, March 29.—Soldiers who deserted from the American Army prior to our entry into the war and joined the forces of the allied nations, were called upon to surrender themselves to the United States military authorities, in a bulletin issued by the War Department this afternoon.

They are promised neither immunity nor leniency, but it is stated that in the cases of men whose army records were clean and who secured honorable discharges from the governments for which they fought, it is probable that they will be restored [illegible] without trial.

Edwards Explains His Advocacy of Beer in Camps

Major-General Clarence R. Edwards offers the following explanation of his reference to the use of beer and light wines in the canteen work in his address Friday evening at Faneuil Hall:

"I am not in any way combating the temperance movement by advocating the use of light wines and beer in the canteen work.

"Under my observation in France in the use of these drinks I saw nothing that would indicate intemperance prevailed where they were used. In fact, I saw more real temperance among the users of these drinks. I think you will find that the French people are more temperate than we are in this respect.

"I am not to be understood as opposing any temperance movement and must accept the experiences which I have had in camp life and in many other places in the army that light wines and beer should not be tabooed."

Gen. March Outlines Plans for Reorganization of U. S. Army of 509,000 Men

By International News Service.

Washington, March 29.—The War Department is going to proceed at once with the organization of a permanent amy of 509,000, as provided in the army bill introduced in the last Congress, but which failed of passage, General Peyton C. March, chief of staff, announced at his weekly conference today.

These divisions, as far as they go, will retain the numbers of the divisions that participated in the world war, this action being taken so that the names of the organizations may be perpetuated. For instance, the 42nd—which is to be the cavalry division—will be known as the "Rainbow" adn will be recruited from all parts of the United States.

DISMISS WIFE'S SUIT

Abrupt Ending of Testimony Halted Mrs. Newbury's Promised Story

Fall River, March 29.—Clerk Borden of the Superior Cout of Bristol County made formal announcement today that a decree of divorce had been granted to Thompson Newbury, the Taunton millionaire whose divorce action in Superior Court was brought to an abrupt close this week by order of the court.

The cross-libel filed by Mrs. Mabel Gould Slocum Stickney Newbury, the "Dresden China Doll" of stage fame and society pet of Newport, was ordered dismissed. The order of the court followed a long conference between Judge Quinn, Frank W. Knowlton, attorney for Newbury, and Edward A. Thurston, counsel for Mrs. Newbury.

Neither attorney would make any statement regarding the abrupt ending of a suit that promised to be the most sensational of any in Bristol County for the past twenty years. A pledge was exacted by the court at the time the libel was dismissed, and each attorney put upon his honor to reveal nothing of the reasons that led up to the break.

It is rumored her that Mrs. Newbury was really the winner of the suit, and that a large money settlement has been made by the Newbury family.

The ending of the case came just before Mrs. Newbury was to have taken the stand to present her side of the case. The story that she promised to tell would have revealed the names of men and women prominent in exclusive circles of the Back Bay, Providence, Taunton and Newport. The abrupt ending of the suit prevented this story from ever reaching the ears of the court.

PAYROLL STOLEN AT GUNPOINT

Emerson L. Dickerman Robbed at Entrance to Place Business

Emerson L. Dickerman, of the Dickerman Maurland Box Company at Albany and Wareham streets, reported to the police of the East Dedham street station today, that he had been held up, at the point of a gun, and robbed of $1,211 in the hallway leading into his place of business.

He gave the police a meagre description of two youn men whom he charges with the theft.

The $1,211 was the weekly payroll of the company which Mr. Dickerman, who is also an attorney, had just drawn from the bank. He entered the side door, in Wareham street, intending to go direct to the office with the funds. Suddenly a man stepped out in front of him with a drawn revolver demanding that the money be given him.

At the same time he placed his hand on the Boston bag in which Mr. Dickerman was carrying the funds and wrenched it free. His companion headed for the street, while the armed robber ordered Mr. Dickerman to proceed upstairs to the office without giving an alarm.

They then turned and ran through Wareham street, into Albany street, and escaped.
